350,000 Moroccans plan to invade Spanish Sahara

RABAT, Morocco (UPI) — Morocco brushed aside Spanish protests Sunday and went ahead with plans for a massive march by 350,000 unarmed Moroccan civilians — with King Hassan II at their head — into the Spanish Sahara.

Moroccan authorities said Spain was distorting the facts by asking for an urgent United Nations Security Council meeting to study what it called a threatened "invasion" of the disputed North African territory.

The Security Council is due to meet today to deal with Spain's complaint.

In a formal statement, Moroccan Information Minister Taïbi Benhima said:

"Spain is falsifying the character of the royal decision and is trying to make the United Nations shoulder the responsibility for a situation that Spain alone created.

"The use of the word invasion is not only shocking for Morocco but it also means using a falsification in dealing with the highest U.N. body."

Spain has said it plans to withdraw from the mineral-rich colony in North Africa "as soon as possible" and to hold a U.N.-sponsored referendum to let the 88,000 Saharans decide their own political destiny.

Morocco claims tribal chieftains in the Spanish Sahara are loyal to King Hassan. But Mauritania also claims the sparsely populated stretch of desert and Algeria reportedly backs groups demanding independence.

Spanish Ambassador to the United Nations Jaime de Pinies Saturday described the planned march as an "invasion" and said that "besides endangering international peace and security, it ignores the rights of the people of the Sahara to self-determination."

Moroccan officials said Sunday the response to Hassan's call last Thursday for 350,000 volunteers to join him in the trek beginning Oct. 27 was enthusiastic, with 361,987 already registered.

Panel finds ways to save $360 million

State told how to cut costs

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — The state could take 412 steps to save a total of $360 million a year, according to a businessmen's panel appointed by Gov. Milton J. Shapp.

The 54-member commission, headed by former U.S. Steel executive John Angle, outlined means of cutting costs for everything from paper and personnel to major state programs in its 1,200-page report, which will be officially released Tuesday.

Major points include: — A freeze on rapidly escalating pension benefits for state employees and teachers. It called the current benefits "unnecessarily generous" and said the pension funds were short nearly $5 billion.

— A major overhaul of Act 195, the law that let public employees join unions. The panel said the law was stacked against the public, gave the unions too much power and encouraged inefficiency.

— A shutdown of all of the nine state general hospitals, which the panel said were poorly run, and a phasing out of at least six of the state institutions for the mentally ill and retarded. It called the general hospitals and homes "outmoded and underutilized."

— $17.5 million boost in tuition and fees at the 14 state-owned colleges. The businessmen said the low tuition at the 13 colleges and Indiana University threatened the private colleges in Pennsylvania.

The heart of the report dealt with ways to improve the daily operations of state government. The panel urged Shapp to create an office of State Manager — with power nearly equal to the governor — to run the bureaucracy.

Despite the fact that the number of state workers has increased 17 per cent in the last five years, the businessmen said productivity has slipped and urged major cutbacks in personnel in the Revenue, Health and Transportation Departments.

This is the second panel Shapp has created to take a hard look at state government efficiency. The businessmen, who volunteered their time to work on the report, took four months to compile the recommendations.

Many of the proposals — especially those dealing with the state colleges, mental institutions and homes for the retarded — should meet with strong resistance from the unions and the legislature.

However, the panel said 86 per cent of its recommendations could be implemented by Shapp and his cabinet without legislative approval.

Other highlights of the report include:

— A call on the state to sell some of the 3.5 million acres of land its own. The panel said the state could make $29 million by selling unneeded property. It could make another $30 million by selling 828 acres of land at the Philadelphia State Mental Hospital in northeast Philadelphia.

— It was sharply critical of the Bureau of Corrections and said it was inefficient because of "insufficient short-and long-range planning, crisis management and the lack of program measurements." It called for creation of a new department to run the prisons.

— Abolition of the county boards of assistance in the Welfare Department. The panel said the boards duplicate much of the work done by department personnel and should be only advisory. It said could save $2.2 million by eliminating 210 unnecessary jobs at the county boards.

Low tuition, rapid growth may end for state colleges

HARRISBURG (UPI) — If a panel of businessmen appointed by Gov. Milton J. Shapp has its way, the days of low tuition and rapid growth will end at Pennsylvania's 14 state-owned colleges.

(Related story, page 11)

The Governor's Review has urged Shapp to hike tuition and fees, increase the faculty workload and give the Education Department tighter control over the operations of the 13 colleges and Indiana University.

The report, which will be released officially on Tuesday, is sure to make officials at the schools unhappy.

They were forced recently to increase tuition by $50 — a move that brought the total up to $800 a year — and to do $16 million worth of "retrenchment," the word the Education Department uses for budget freezes and layoffs.

However, the 54 businessmen who volunteered to look at state government operations clearly think the colleges can tighten their belts a few more notches.

Under the panel's plan, tuition for Pennsylvania residents would go from an average of $25 per credit to a flat fee of $33 per credit, a move that would bring tuition up to an average of $990 a year and raise $17.5 million.

The group urged the state to make all room and board fees uniform and then raise them by $60 a year for each student. It also wants students to begin paying health and parking fees.

"The desire to maintain low fee schedules, coupled with rising educational costs, has made state-owned schools a major competitor of private institutions in the state," the report said.

"If allowed to continue without some effort to install more realistic rates in state schools, the situation may cause private schools to close their doors or seek state subsidies."

In order to get more state control over the schools, the panel wants to Education Department to create a new executive deputy secretary to oversee their operations. The report said the state could save $8 million if that official controlled growth of the schools.

The panel also wants the state to improve faculty productivity. It believes the teacher workload could be increased by at least 10 per cent, a move that would save $10 million a year.

Bureaucracy too taxing on health

By BRUCE POSTEN

Pocono Record Reporter

HONESDALE — Paul

Sumner has resigned as the executive director of the Tri-County Area Agency on Aging (AAA) (Wayne, Pike and Monroe counties), citing the bureaucracy as too taxing to his health.

Sumner could not be reached at his home Sunday, but in a statement released Saturday he said, "The Aging Program in a multi-funded, multi-county area has become extremely complex and sophisticated and consequently has severely taxed my strength and health.

"For this reason, and after considerable thought and prayer, I have submitted my resignation effective as of Dec. 31, 1975."

Pike County Commissioner Warner Depuy, chairman of the AAA governing board, said Sunday he has not received a copy of Sumner's letter, but noted "I've been aware that he (Sumner) has been dissatisfied for quite some time.

"I think he was right when he said the agency was too complex, but I will be sorry to see him go. I think he was overly conscientious," Depuy said.

Depuy said the AAA Governing Board will probably not meet until after the November 4 election to pick a successor.

Martha Kitchen, chairman of the Tri-County AAA Advisory Board, said she was informed of Sumner's resignation on Sunday.

She said she would schedule an advisory board meeting this week to "review the situation" before making any comment.

Wayne County Commissioner Fred Holbert said he had not been officially notified of Sumner's resignation, but knew that "Sumner's health had gone bad.

"I can't make any comment until I receive official word of it (the resignation)," Holbert said.

Monroe County Commissioners Nancy Shukaitis and Arlington Martin said they were unaware that Sumner planned to resign.

"I heard him often complain of the bureaucracy and red tape, and he was always right in the middle of it," Mrs. Shukaitis said.

Sumner, who served as AAA executive director for more than a year, was formerly the director of Wayne County's Aging Office.

In the past months, Sumner had been criticized by Monroe County officials for not attempting to alter the proposed 1976 budget to give Monroe County a bigger share of total funding.

Bacon producers out of frying pan, into fire

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department plans to force the nation's bacon producers to remove a dangerous cancer-causing agent from the breakfast table favorite — or stop selling bacon as it is now known.

Dr. Donald Houston, assistant deputy administrator in the USDA's Meat and Poultry Inspection Division, said the decision follows an 18-month study by a panel of scientific experts looking into the dangers of sodium nitrite, a commonly used preservative in cured meats.

Nitrites give cured products such as ham, bologna and hot dogs their pinkish color and kept meats from spoiling long before refrigerators and freezers were available. They now are added to meats because they prevent botulism, the dangerous food poisoning.

But nitrites also can combine with chemicals to form nitrosamines, among the most potent cancer-causing agents yet discovered. Scientists are not sure why, but while problems have been eliminated in most meat products, bacon produces more nitrosamines than other cured meats.

Series delayed

Heavy rains postponed the sixth game of the World Series for the second straight day Sunday. Weather permitting, the Cincinnati Reds will try to wrap things up tonight with Gary Nolan pitching against Boston's Luis Tiant. Details on page 13.

Politics were part of early Monroe County

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is one of a series of articles by Bobby Westbrook on some of the historical places in the area, the people who built them and how the years have changed them in a countdown through 1975 toward the Bicentennial year of 1776.)

By BOBBY WESTBROOK

VILLAGE OF COOLBAUGH — It's startling to discover that one of our founding fathers was addressed both on and off the bench as "Bub."

Judge John Coolbaugh of Middle Smithfield, associate judge in this area in the early 1800's, would not have put up with such familiarity from the floor but he did take it from his fellow associate judge, Daniel W. Dingman.

Dingman is one of the most colorful of early characters and comes on strong even in the usually staid history books. In his "Unwritten History of Smithfield Township," Luther Huffman, describes him:

"A very eccentric man of great native intellect, great force of character, but uneducated. It is said that he came into court without a coat and with bare feet."

While there was probably a great difference in demeanor and character of Coolbaugh and of Dingman, they did have some physical resemblance and must have been impressive figures flanking the presiding judge. In the political section of Matthew's history, he describes them:

"They were both large, stoutly built men verging on 200 pounds."

Both of them were serving on the bench in a case involving the vote to establish a county seat for the new county of Monroe. Although the first petition to form a new county above the Blue Mountains was in 1794, it was not until 42 years later that the new county was authorized by the legislature in 1836.

At its first election, Dutotsburg, now Delaware Water Gap, was one of the contestants for county seat, even volunteering to change its name to Monroe Center. It received only 82 votes and was eliminated. The contest then narrowed down to Stroudsburg and Kellersville. Stroudsburg won by a majority of 70 votes.

Charges of fraud were made, particularly against the Middle Smithfield election board of John Place and Samuel Gunsaulus, where the large vote exceeded the number of male citizens. There were 345 votes cast for Stroudsburg and only two for Kellersville in the township. Yet four years later at the Presidential election, Harrison received two votes and Van Buren received 208, a total of 210.

While it seems obvious that there was a big discrepancy, the charges came to naught. As Huffman tells the story:

"Since there was no courthouse in Monroe County and the court had not been fully organized, the case was taken to Pike County for trial. It was tried before Judge David Scott, president judge of the 11th judicial district, and the associate judges of Pike County, Daniel W. Dingman and John Coolbaugh."

"Judge Scott quashed one or two counts in the indictment, whereupon he left the bench for a few minutes. During his absence, Judge Dingman took it upon himself to rule on the other indictments.

"I know the law for I have been to the Legislature," and laying his hand on a copy of the pamphlet laws said: 'Bub and I will quash the other indictment on the grounds of the Legislature.'"

Eight women rob market

BRADFORD, Pa. — Eight women robbed an East Bradford supermarket of $1,000 Saturday night. Police said it appeared their only weapon was their gifts for conversation. According to officers, six of the women entered Sal's & Sons market and occupied sales clerks with discussions of food prices and other subjects. Meanwhile, two others went into the market office. One of those two persuaded the cashier to walk with her to the back of the store, while the other scooped up about $1,000 in cash, police said. All eight escaped in two cars, one of which had a Georgia license.

Here's one for the guys

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Mortar Board, Inc., a national women's honor society, has tentatively voted to admit men to the society to avoid losing federal funds. The 60-year-old society's action came at a weekend emergency meeting. The organization faced the possibility of a cutoff of federal funds because it was not in compliance with regulations banning discrimination in federally funded programs. The delegates, students from 167 colleges, rejected other alternatives to the funding problem. Those included disbanding the organization, disaffiliating it from universities, consolidating it with a men's honor society or taking the integration of sexes question to court.

Paper goes against Rizzo

PHILADELPHIA — Calling incumbent Frank L. Rizzo "an arrogant and divisive tyrant," the Inquirer Sunday endorsed black independent Charles W. Bowser in the November mayoralty election. Former Police Commissioner Rizzo, hospitalized with a broken hip suffered during a refinery fire last Sunday, seeks his second term as mayor of the nation's fourth largest city. "Frank Rizzo has proved himself to be an arrogant and divisive tyrant, surrounded by graft, disrespectful of civil liberties, ignorant of and indifferent to the city's needs, and more interested in the power and trappings of his office than anything else," the paper said. The Inquirer said Rizzo has violated the City Charter by spending more money than the city takes in, the paper said. The paper cited a Time magazine survey showing that of America's 10 largest cities only New York and Philadelphia were operating at a deficit.

Sinatra warbles to cosmonauts

STATELINE, Nev. — Frank Sinatra had his musical charts on "Fly Me to the Moon" sent up from Los Angeles so he could sing the once popular ballad at his night club appearance Sunday night for Soviet spacemen Alexei Leonov and Valeriy Kobasov. A spokesman at Harrah's South Shore Room on Lake Tahoe said Sinatra had not planned to sing it at his appearance but changed his mind when he learned the cosmonauts were to attend the dinner show. "He's very excited about meeting them backstage after the show," the spokesman said. Leonov and Kobasov are on a cross-country tour with American spacemen Thomas Stafford, Vance Brand and Donald Slayton. They were crewmen on the Apollo-Soyuz mission.

Be a hero — munch a worm.

LOS ANGELES — A dish with a fancy French name like "ver de terre" is bound to become an appetite pleaser, but when it translates into simple English, it may turn more than just the stomach. "Ver de terre" is the French name for earthworms. These little ground creatures can be baked in cookies, added to casseroles or sprinkled on salads. The best results using this ingredient are obtained only after they have been cooked. To convince the American public that earthworms are more than fish bait or land savers, the North American Bait Farms Inc. of Ontario, Calif., is conducting a contest, with a prize of $500, to find the best earthworm recipe.

Targets of natural gas shortage

WASHINGTON — The anticipated natural gas shortage this winter probably will pinch the chemical and paper industries the hardest, a survey for the Federal Energy Administration showed Sunday. In those and other industries facing production cutbacks because of gas shortages, unemployment may rise temporarily by the hundreds of thousands, Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., believes. The natural gas shortage means much more to industry than to residential users because other gas priority system interrupts service to industry first, in a shortage. Hollings is the author of a pending bill to ease the shortage's impact through emergency interstate sales at a price higher than that set by the Federal Power Commission.

Nixon pardon 'atrocious'

WASHINGTON — Former special Watergate prosecutor Henry S. Ruth Jr. said Sunday the timing of President Ford's Sept. 8, 1974, pardon of Richard M. Nixon was "atrocious" and "extremely unfortunate." "I thought the timing of the pardon was atrocious in the sense that it was . . . a month before the Watergate trial was due to start," said Ruth, who stepped down from office last week. "I never dreamed in my own mind that the pardon would come before the Watergate jury was sequestered."

President finishes plan for food stamp reforms

WASHINGTON (U.P.I.) — President Ford put the finishing touches Sunday on his proposals for reforming the food stamp program to save the federal government $1 billion. Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz will take the program to Congress today in an appearance before the Senate Agriculture Committee. The administration program is aimed at tightening up eligibility requirements for food stamps and eliminating such abuses as college students' "steak parties" funded by the stamps.

Ford has been preparing the program for many months and has been particularly chagrined at what he feels are abuses by students on scholarships.

Aides said the President's aim is to remove from food stamp rolls those who are no longer qualified and to concentrate on the needy.

The food stamp program went into effect in 1964 with about 350,000 participants and a $30 million budget. The federal budget for stamps now has grown to $6 billion.

Ford believes there is growing sentiment on Capitol Hill in support of his position.

Drizzly weather kept the President indoors working on his papers most of Sunday. However he was able to get out for a game of tennis on the South Lawn of the White House with his military aide, Col. Robert Barrett.

It is true that Dingman had served on the legislature, having succeeded John Coolbaugh as Representative from Wayne County in 1808. Coolbaugh had been elected in 1798, and had been re-elected in 1800, 1802, and 1806.

Coolbaugh then served as Clerk of Court Records in 1809 and was appointed an associate judge in 1814 for Lower and Middle Smithfield.

Each judicial district had a judge who was "learned in the law" and one or more associate judges, not learned in the law but knowledgeable about the district they served. They evidently wielded much more power than in later years. The post itself was discontinued by vote of the electorate in 1968 but judges already elected completed their terms. Thus Monroe County was served by the late Associate Judge

Walter Heckman until 1971. Meanwhile one of Judge John Coolbaugh's sons, Moses Wills Coolbaugh, followed in his father's political footsteps. He was a member of the board of trustees named for selecting the site for the county building and overseeing its erection. Moses was elected to serve in the Pennsylvania Legislature in 1835. He was elected an associate judge in Monroe County, and served on the first Middle Smithfield school board.

Moses Wills Coolbaugh, who married Mary Nyce, daughter of a Virginia family who had owned many slaves, was elected a delegate to the Democratic State Convention in 1861 when they passed a resolution opposing armed aggression against the South.

The next year, even though his son, George, was serving as a colonel in the Union Army,

Moses publicly attacked the Lincoln administration, charging there was little difference between the rebels "who come openly with armies" and the "thieving horde of mercenary office holders and army contractors" who, he charged, "attack us secretly and covertly, robbing our soldiers, cheating the National Treasury, and blunting the patriotic enthusiasm of the people."

This illustrates the differences in opinion aroused during the Civil War period even within the same family. Moses Coolbaugh's brother John Van Campen Coolbaugh, subject of a previous article, stayed away from public office, devoting himself to the church. However his home was one of the stations on the underground railway for runaway slaves, and his more partisan neighbors would yell "Black Republican!" as they passed.

They both had large families: John V. 10, and Moses, 15. Their brothers and sisters also left a heritage of descendants: Sarah, who married William Overfield and had ten children; Hannah, who married Solomon Westbrook and had six; Abraham married Margaret Dingman; Susan married William Brodhead.

John's wife, Sarah Van Campen Coolbaugh, mother of this prodigious brood, died in 1829. John married Mary Field in 1830. Still in possession of the family is notice of the pension she was granted as the widow of a Revolutionary soldier in 1843. It was for $43 a year.

As for the old house, the last member of the family to occupy it was M. Frank Coolbaugh, son of Moses. His biography in Beers said that he at one time owned 4,000 acres in Middle Smithfield.

He moved to Stroudsburg and the property became part of one of the early camps in the county, Blue Ridge Camp, and the mansion, as Camp Coolbaugh, housed visiting parents well into this century before it burned down, victim of a brush fire.

M. Frank's only daughter, Adelaide Coolbaugh, is still remembered as one of the pillars of Stroudsburg society, and it's through her that a lot of Coolbaugh memorabilia has been preserved.

Major issues must be resolved

Congress has busy schedule ahead

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress returns from a week-long recess today, prepared to drive for adjournment by the middle of December. A number of major obstacles remain.

With about eight weeks left, the first session of the 94th Congress must still put together an overall energy package; battle the administration on the size of the defense budget; consider substantial new aid to Israel; decide on a tax cut; push through remaining appropriations, and go through a maze of other bills and proposals.

Senate House conferees resume negotiations today on an energy package. Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said he was 95 per cent sure Congress will adopt one before the Nov. 15 expiration of the freeze on oil price controls.

The Senate also plans to complete action on natural gas legislation, with a final vote set Friday in an effort to assure supplies for areas facing a winter shortage.

On the basis of test votes — which could be reversed during the week — the best bet appears to be a proposal by Sens. James B. Pearson, R-Kan., and Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex.

Their plan would allow winter emergency sales at any price the market can bear and then, over a period of years, permanently remove the natural gas price ceiling — now at 51 cents per thousand cubic feet.

The Pearson-Bentsen proposal was substituted for an emergency measure which would have allowed sales — during the coming winter only — at $1.30 per thousand cubic feet.

The House has scheduled only routine legislation for a bobtailed work week.

Price remains unsolved in debate on energy bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said Sunday the price issue is the only remaining obstacle to agreement by Senate-House conferees on a congressional energy bill.

"Only one major issue remains to be resolved, and that is the issue of price," Jackson said in a statement.

"As far as I am concerned, anything we do to increase the price of gasoline or home heating oil to the American people would be selling out the people of this country," said the senator, who is seeking the Democratic presidential nomination.

Jackson said he is "95 per cent confident Congress will pass a total energy package" by Nov. 15.

The conference committee on energy policy has been meeting since Oct. 7 in an effort to agree on an energy bill prior to the Nov. 15 expiration of controls on domestically produced oil. Conferees have yet to decide details of a plan to require auto manufacturers to meet gas mileage standards.

Jackson said the congressional energy package will "meet all the objective standards for energy conservation which the White House and Congress have been talking about for the past two years."

He said the legislation would "protect the nation against further embargoes by providing for a strategic petroleum reserve."

Electric power plants that now burn oil and gas will be required to convert to coal, Jackson said. And the bill "will give the President standby power to deal with an energy emergency by rationing gasoline, banning night-time outdoor advertising, and cutting back on nonessential lighting in office buildings such as the World Trade Center in New York City."

Kissinger defends Soviet-U.S. detente

PEKING (UPI) — Chinese Foreign Minister Chiao Kuan-hua attacked and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger defended America's detente with Soviet Russia Sunday night at a state banquet.

The exchange came in the dinner toasts that are diplomats' heavy artillery.

"The historic reality is not that detente has developed to a new stage, but that the danger of a new world war is mounting. Do not believe there is any lasting peace," Chiao said.

"The only way to deal with hegemonism (which in Peking's political dictionary means her arch-foe, Russia) is to wage a tit-for-tat struggle against it. To base oneself on illusions, to mistake hopes or wishes for reality and act accordingly, will only abet the ambitions of expansionism and lead to grave consequences," said the Chinese diplomatic chief in a toast delivered after the shark's fin course.

It was the first time the Chinese in Kissinger's presence had publicly criticized the U.S. detente policy with Russia, diplomats said.

Kissinger, speaking after the fried mandarin fish course, announced President Ford will be coming to China "soon" to strengthen Sino-American relations. Turning to U.S. detente with Russia, he said:

"Each country must assume the policy suitable to its own circumstances. The United States will resist hegemony, as we have already stated. . . but the United States also will make every effort to avoid needless confrontations when it can do so without threatening the security of third countries. "In this policy, we will be guided by actions and realities and not rhetoric."

Man guns down six people

SUTHERLAND, Neb. (UPI) — Charles Erwin Simants was arrested outside his home early Sunday and charged with the rifle killing of six members of the family next door.

Police said they had no motive for the killings.

Authorities said Henery Kellie and his wife, Marie, both in their 60s, their 33-year-old son, and three of their grandchildren all were shot to death Saturday night.

Simants' "stories are not too clear," Sheriff Gordon Gilster said after questioning Simants for two hours.

Authorities conducted an air and ground manhunt for Simants for nearly 11 hours before he returned home at about 7:45 a.m. and was arrested. Gilster said Simants spent most of the night hiding in weeds about 1½ blocks from the Kellies' single-story, wood-frame home on the north edge of town.

When Gilster was asked about a motive for the shootings, he replied: "I can't say at this time."

"He (Simants) had been drinking, but I wouldn't say he was that drunk."

Gilbert Polytech, where pupils got balanced education

West End Bureau
GILBERT — Just who says a woman was safer at night walking alone in the West End 100 years ago than she is today? Even in 1886 a girl had to know how to defend herself, at least according to Miss Sarah E. Kresge, a student at the Gilbert Polytechnic Institute who participated in the schools' first closing exercises on June 18, 1886.

Her talk was entitled "Our Small Force," and according to a report in the local newspaper, she presented the speech in a manner that showed she had tact to defend herself in the night.

Her essay reportedly also contained "tasty hints" regarding the institute which opened its doors first to the public under the name of the Pleasant Valley Institute at the reformed Sunday School Room in Gilbert. Until the school was forced to close its doors in 1922, more than 1,700 students were educated there.

The first formal closing exercises at the school began at 7:30 p.m. with crowds jamming the tiny Sunday School room just in time to see Principal George W. Dornbach and the Rev. F.W. Smith, founder of the school, march in side by side. They were wearing identical miniature nosegay bouquets in their lapels for the occasion.

The reformed church choir entertained and Rev. Smith asked for God's continued blessing on the young school. The first of several addresses, this one entitled "Our Academy," was presented by Miss Minnie M. Berlin.

"We have need of a good thorough working institution," she said deploring the low educational standard of the community at large and urging residents to make the Polytechnic the strongest educational institute in the county.

Albert D. Wannamaker was next on the program with an organ solo and an oration on "True Liberty." By his speech, it was easy to see how intricately woven the religious and educational values of the day were.

"True liberty is such only when the human actions conform to divine will," he said. "The divine will is the divine law; whatever runs antagonistic to it loses its freedom and becomes the servant of sin."

It was Joseph C. Schloppich who next diverted the audi-ence's attention to the beauty of the floral kingdom, again praising God for "his wonderful goodness to the children of men."

Miss Emma C. Kresge presented an essay on the "Duties of the Family," which was promptly followed by Miss Sarah Kresge's speech on self-defense.

Applause broke out midway in the exercises when Dornbach gave "an exposition" on the calisthenic exercises that were adopted in 1886 as part of the Gilbert students' course requirements in the field of physiology and hygiene.

William Gregory presented a eulogy of Henry Clay and was followed on the platform by W.H. Shafer who reportedly "pronounced a better invective" on Benedict Arnold.

Dornbach gave the final closing speech summing up the first three months of the operation of the famous academy and the exercises ended with bouquets of local flowers being presented to the speakers and students from the audience.

Street condition serious problem

By RUTH VINCE
Pocono Record Reporter
MOUNT POCONO — It's a known fact that when a citizen complains today, he is bumping up against a brick wall. In the case of residents in Mount Pocono, it's a matter of bumping over extremely bad streets.

One man, who did not want to be identified said, "These streets were in better shape 50 years ago when some weren't even paved."

A drive around the borough over streets torn up during construction of the sewage collection line for the borough's central sewerage system, can be hazardous, teeth jarring, and nerve wracking.

D. & C. Spinoso was contracted by the local municipal authority to install collection lines. His contract included the restoration of all streets torn up during construction.

According to project engineers all collection lines (with the exception of a small area) was completed several months ago.

Street restoration was started, but the work was so sub-standard, according to borough council and many residents, a complaint was submitted to the authority requesting the contract be taken away from Spinoso and awarded to someone else.

Authority Chairman Roy Gross reasoned that it was too late to do this because of the time involved in advertising bids and weather conditions.

In September the authority withheld $46,826.31 from Spinoso and in October another $19,470.44 was withheld until all street restoration was completed satisfactorily.

Beside the two requisition payments being withheld, five per cent of the contract or $77,269.11 is withheld until all work is completed.

Warnings and withholding of money doesn't seem to faze the contractor.

People are wondering why liquidated damages have not been assessed against the contractor. One woman, at a recent authority meeting posed the question. She said, "If I don't pay my bills on time I'm penalized. Why isn't the contractor?"

It is within the power of the authority to assess liquidated damages.

A figure of $200,000 was quoted as being allotted for street restoration in the construction areas, even though engineers say this amount will not be used.

This amount is enough to re-surface, with good materials, every street in the borough. There are 10 miles of roads. The cost per mile, according to a local contractor is $20,000.

Another question in the minds of many residents is why no pressure was placed on other contractors who did not live up to the contract's specified completion date of 365 days.

Construction started in March of 1974. It is now one year and seven months later and all work has not been completed.

Residents are told the plant is operable. It seems its a case of being completed but not completed.

True, there have been some legitimate delays, bad weather, strikes, and one case of vandalism. But most people feel not seven months of legitimate delays. Why no liquidated damages against contractors? The question swings slowly in the air.

These delays have caused the authority to continue to borrow money from the bank to pay bills. Money from grants from Farmers Home Administration will not be forthcoming until the project is 100 per cent completed.

Revenue to the authority from those connecting to the system has also been delayed.

One extension was requested from the bank and granted. The interest paid by the authority from August to October was in excess of $7,400. Another extension has been requested from October to December. More interest to be paid.

The sewerage plant is completed, but not quite; collection lines are completed, but not quite; streets are being restored, but not quite; residents complain, but to no avail.

Residents are paying, and will be paying, some for the rest of their lives.

One man stated, "I thought the cost of the system to me would mean I would have to sell my home and move to another area. But I've resolved myself to the fact that I might be able to live with the cost."

"Now I'm concerned about how long my 1974 car will last driving over these so called restored streets. I know darn well I can't afford a new car."

Mill gets $500 gift

By MAUREEN RUFÉ
Pocono Record Reporter
BRODHEADSVILLE — Today's hot news tip is that Wyckoff's has donated $500 towards restoration of the Old Mill in Sciota. The Old Mill Committee, appointed by Hamilton Township supervisors to oversee refurbishing of the mills, is, as they say here, pleased as punch, about the contribution.

The Old Mill Committee is in the process of planning a trip to tour an old mill and will hold its next meeting at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, Oct. 21, at Dr. Earl Robacker's home across Rte. 209 from the Old Mill.

Evelyn Serfass, who was born in the Robacker home, will present a historical sketch on the mill and surrounding area.

Don't plan to stop into the A&P at Brodheads-ville at 2 a.m. any longer to do your grocery shopping. It's started serving the public again only from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. instead of maintaining its 24-hour service.

The West End ambulance association will elect its new officers at the group's next regular meeting on Nov. 11. The officers will be elected from the seven new members of the board of directors. We'll let you know who the new officers are after the election.

The ladies auxiliary of the Polk Township Volunteer Fire Company is sponsoring another one of its special smorgasbord's on Oct. 26, we're told. Mark the date on your calendar if you want to get in on some authentic Pennsylvania Dutch cooking.

WANTED — Large barn for old fashioned hoe down. That's exactly what the Fairview Senior Citizen's Club is in the market for these days for a special fall program they're planning in the near future. The members want to have an old-fashioned hoe down with square dancing in a local barn. If you have a barn you could loan the group for a day, call president Viola Leamy at 992-4101.

And speaking of the senior citizen's, the group is also in the market for a pianist who will accompany the Fuddie Duddies choir. The practices are held every other Wednesday at 1:30 p.m. at the Brodheads-ville Firehouse. The group is now planning to present a Christmas program in local nursing homes during the holiday season, but without a pianist, that will be impossible.

If you're a pastor in the West End area, perhaps you would want to extend your calls to include the residents of the Brookmont Acres nursing home in Effort. Some of the patients there have need of pastoral services, and we would guess that the residents of the Kresge Home in Gilbert also have similar needs. If you're interested in visiting either facility, contact the home administrators.

You may have the most beautiful lacey fern-like greenery still growing in your garden right now in the form of asparagus tops. Whatever you do, don't cut them off before they are completely dead. That's the expert advice of Monroe County Extension Agent John Withrow.

If the tops are cut off too early, next year's crop might be reduced.

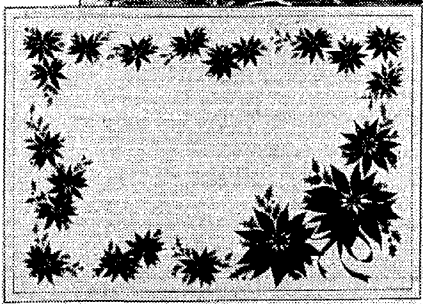

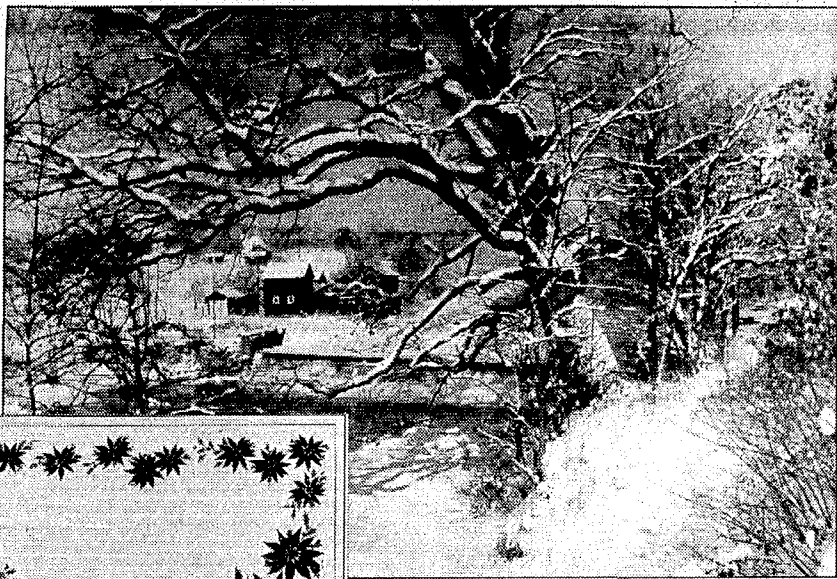

You may even have to wait until the tops get yellow before you can remove them. It's essential to wait, since all the food materials from the plant travel from the tops to the storage roots as long as there is life in the stalks.

Withrow recommends cutting off the tops several inches above the ground in November.

Have you ever thought of sponsoring a unique educational program on kidney disease for a club or organization you belong to? The Hemodialysis Patients Association of Northeastern Pennsylvania (HPA) is now offering to make presentations to any group that may be interested in kidney patients. A new educational program is now being worked out at the Moses Taylor and Wilkes-Barre General Hospital renal units. If you're interested in the program, contact the Wilkes-Barre office in Nanticoke at 735-2167 or Scranton at 346-9903.

Slides will be shown and questions will be answered by a professional team consisting of a patient, professional nurse, doctor or social worker and an HPA board member.

And most of you are familiar with the old box socials that were once held at the local church, but do you know what one of the tricks played on the local playboys or wise guys was? The boy would be told a special box belonged to a beautiful girl that he would just love to sit with and have lunch with. And if the girl was a good cook, the thought of that home cooked fried chicken was almost too much to keep him from buying a box no matter what the cost. The other fellows would begin to bid up the price of the box, the playboy would finally end up with it, and when he opened it, it would be filled with pieces of plain old wood. Not very appetizing, to say the least.

City's plight no laughing matter

Pale and shaken, New York City's administration backed away from the brink of default Friday, thanks to a union that joined others of its ilk in realizing where their bread was buttered and bailed the city out with the union's pension funds.

Albert Shanker's teachers union thus pooled its money with that of other labor groups, police and firemen among them, to keep the city afloat and enable it to meet financial obligations at least through the end of December.

But, laden with ironies and black humor as it is, the plight of New York City left more than its own administration pale and shaken. It also did a good job of unnerving the rest of the nation and the financial community as well.

New York may be the most extreme example, but cities throughout the country, from the largest metropolises to the smallest urban area, are in the same boat. They, too, need money to supply the public's ever-increasing demand for services, and the tax load is already a crushing burden to the majority of wage earners and small-to-medium companies.

Their only recourse is the bond market (we floated one in Monroe County to finance the transfer of Pleasant Valley Manor) and that market is all but closed to offers except at record-high interest rates since New York City began to crumble.

The ironies we mentioned reflect this problem. It was the extra-generous pension programs that had a great deal to do with burdening the city's finances; it was the pension funds that helped it avoid defaulting on obligations for the time being. And generous pensions, which have proven to be actuarially unsound, are a fact of labor contract life all over the nation, waiting to claim the financial health of cities and states within a few short years.

The hefty welfare system that so weighs down New York City is one legislated in great part by Washington, D.C. — which now refuses to help the city. The same welfare legislation is busily working to weaken the financial standing of local and state governments everywhere.

The greatest irony is that the Ford administration, which is presiding over the highest deficits in our history, even ignoring inflation, is chastening New York City for fiscal prodigality . . . and refusing to do anything to help. That's a negative precedent which bodes ill for any other state or municipal government which, encouraged by the Washington example, may have gotten in over its head and may seek federal assistance in the near future.

Is the Big Apple rotten to the core? No, it is simply serving as it historically has — as weathervane of the nation, swinging with winds of change and pointing to where the rest of the nation is going. If that analogy holds true, then New York City's plight will be visited on the rest of us some day, and we should also be pale and shaken.

Those who feel they can laugh at the Big Apple now may reflect on the satisfying myth of those who laugh last.

Welcome order

The Federal Trade Commission's decision to force mail order houses to deliver goods within 30 days of the order is good news to all we catalog freaks . . . not to mention our Write to Know man.

The Record's problem-solving columnist may even have to find something else to do if the FTC's order proves effective.

While the Write to Know column solves (or tries to solve) all sorts of problems, those connected with non-appearing mail order merchandise dominate by far, suggesting that the FTC finally has awakened to a real problem.

Magazine subscriptions, one of our chief sources of complaints, will not be covered, except for the first issue. But that's the biggest hang-up, anyway. Unless the publishing firm goes out of business, and that's another story.

The days when a would-be mail order tycoon would start up with little if any capital, waiting for his orders to come in and give him the wherewithal to buy the goods offered may be gone forever. That's bad news for budding entrepreneurs, but good news for the public . . . and our Write to Know man, who now will probably be able to concentrate on more interesting problems than: "Three months ago, we ordered an embroidered widget . . ."

Media hounds go on baying after Patty Hearst

Nicholas Von Hoffman

Everything else has indeed been made public, down to the fact that Patty's apartment contained "one white and yellow cardboard box bearing the name Elura Quality Hair Goods" and "one red woman's nightie with panties."

In the midst of what the crime writers might call a welter of wisecracks, Theo Wilson, The New York Daily News' star word writer, emitted a noise of unprintable meaning. "If they don't produce Patty or something around here soon, I'll have a choice of going home or interviewing Squeaky (Fromme) again."

Then in the manner of a baseball manager announcing the next appearance on the mound of his 25-game winner, Stevenson enters, accompanied by an FBI agent, to tell everyone when Patty would next be put on exhibition in a courtroom. Since Stevenson's understanding of the exact procedural state of the case differs in minor detail from that of Judge Carter's secretary, jokes are proffered on the general theme of federal law enforcement inefficiency. "There is levity in the press room today," the FBI agent observes, whereupon somebody from a Chicago paper wants to know the color of the agent's socks.

Another question is tossed at Stevenson, who replies by saying "let's go on background," to which someone moans, "Oh, Jeeesus!" Before Stevenson turned up with his Washington, D.C., ways, on-the-record and off-the-record were the only distinctions the media had to contend with. The Justice Department man is accused of introducing such eastern seaboard subtleties as "background" and "deep background," and on-the-record-but-not-for-attribution and off-the-record-but-for-attribution.

Stevenson is playing the only new role in this production of "The Front Page" in contemporary dress. Back in the time the play was written, government agencies didn't have flacks, but Stevenson has learned to talk like the perpetually dissatisfied, complaining reporters with whom he works: "I'm going broke out here on a $39 a day per diem in a town as expensive as San Francisco, and that doesn't count the laundry, so if I'm aromatic sometimes you know why."

The media aroma is a lot stronger than Bob Stevenson's unwashed socks. Caught up in the biggest mass communications gang-bang since the Dr. Sam Sheppard murder case, the boys and the girls of medialand have been playing hare and hound with Patty for a year and a half. The story of the three Los Angeles Times reporters searching for Tania in the hoochy-koochy parlors of Hong Kong has been told, but there are others yet to be narrated. Like the reporter who was contacted by a group called the Tribal Thumb. Lured on by promises of getting to Patty, she allowed herself to be blindfolded by the Thumb and driven through the night to a meeting place, where she was lectured and hectorated by yet another group of soidisant revolutionaries composed of a black ex-con and his simpy, white college student followers. At four in the morning she was re-blindfolded, given a pair of pants to wear under skirt, dumped on the rear of a motorcycle and driven in freezing cold and fright back home.

The question always was who would get to Patty first. Would it be the FBI or the movie producers, the book agents or the media? The book industry won when Jack Scott put a metaphorical second snatch on her, kept her and her pals in seclusion on a Pennsylvania farm while he sucked book material out of them, and then chucked them back in the water for the FBI to hook, or so the Rolling Stone scoop would lead us to believe.

In the Oliver J. Carter Press Room, Theo Wilson, who never makes the mistake of dressing up a sexy crime story in pop sociology, has a foot up on the desk and she's not discussing the issue of fair trail versus free press. She is explaining that she and her chums are writing a musical comedy about Patty, her kidnappings, her conversions and her adventures: "We're gonna call it, 'Blow in My Ear and I'll Follow You Anywhere.'"

Media will also.

Roscoe Drummond

Who are conservatives?

WASHINGTON — It is evident that an unexpectedly strong conservative tide is running in the nation. It is gathering momentum. It goes well beyond the sudden turn to fiscal sanity in New York City.

There has been nothing like it since the wave of resentment which swept the country after F.D.R. sought to pack the Supreme Court in 1937, after which the Democrats lost 75 seats in the House of Representatives.

Today this gathering conservative trend is uniting the Republicans behind two thoroughly conservative presidential candidates, Gerald Ford and Ronald Reagan, and leaving the GOP liberals with little influence.

It is dividing the Democrats into two opposing factions. There is the Democratic Party in Congress which remains free-spending and dedicated to piling new federal programs on top of old. And there is now the Democratic Party at the state and local level which is responding to a wave of popular sentiment against big bureaucracy, big spending and pervasive government intervention.

The effect of all this is to move the political center of the nation visibly to the right.

Evidence is substantial

The evidence is substantial. The highly respected liberal Democratic governor of Wisconsin, Parick Lucey, puts the conservative theme in these words:

"We are beginning to recognize that there are limits to what government can and should do. The day is past when a Wisconsin governor can present a budget which is nothing more than a catalogue of goodies offering a little something for everybody."

The liberal Democratic governors of California and Massachusetts have been talking in the same vein for months. Gov. Hugh Carey of New York, who supported all the big-spending programs when he was in Congress, is now proclaiming: "The days of wine and roses are over."

Colorado Gov. Richard Lamm sees the United States heading toward an "economic Dunkirk" if it doesn't return to economic prudence.

The theme stressed by young Edmund (Jerry) Brown of California shows how closely the "reformed Democrats" are coming to the kind of conservatism Republicans used to praise but lately rarely practiced. His premise is that "less government is better." The old Republican slogan one was that "government which governs least, governs best."

There is no present evidence that the radically new tack state and local Democrats are taking is influencing the Democrats in Congress.

But the intellectuals behind the national Democrats are beginning to see the light. For example, Ted Van Dyk, who was a top policy adviser in both the Humphrey and McGovern presidential campaigns, is now giving this unorthodox advice to his party:

"The first 1,000 days of new Democratic Presidency . . . should include a ruthless re-examination of every federally funded and administrative agency and program."

'What are those kids playing with down there?'

'Operation Startrek' mission: Catch drug smugglers

Jack Anderson With Les Whitten

Seizures have been made in Arizona, California and New Mexico. This has required a unique cooperative effort between the Customs Service and Air Force, supported by both federal and local authorities.

On October 3, for instance, the Customs "Startrekkers" alerted New Mexico state police who seized a plane and 1,700 pounds of marijuana.

Under the "Startrek" program, more than 100 planes have been targeted as suspects. Many were lost at first as the new system was put into effect. But in the last few days, the coordination has improved, and the net has been drawing tighter on the smugglers.

Footnote: We held up this story until the Customs Service became convinced that word of "Operation Startrek" had leaked out. Commissioner Vernon Acree confirmed the success of the program. "It has exceeded our highest expectations," he told us. "At last we have a handle on the problem. It's a major breakthrough."

Inside The Supreme Court: Chief Justice Warren Burger, with his white mane and black robes, is the picture of a patrician. In keeping with his image, he takes warm ginger snaps and lemon tea promptly at 10 o'clock every morning that the court is not in session. The tea is served by Burger's manservant on an elegant silver tray. Occasionally the Chief Justice likes to sip a little wine. His manservant brings five different wine glasses for Burger to choose from.

Justice Harry Blackmun surprised court observers a few years ago by voting in favor of abortion in a landmark abortion case. Each year on the anniversary of the controversial case, Blackmun receives red roses, delivered one at a time, as a symbol of protest from an anti-abortion group.

Justice William O. Douglas, the court's faltering old grizzly, keeps careful account of two activities: court decisions and sports statistics.

Court insiders still chuckle about the day a Georgia lawyer used the term "negress" in his courtroom presentation. An amused Justice Thurgood Marshall, himself a black, shot back: "A what?" The uncomfortable lawyer replied: "A female Negro, Mr. Justice."

Modern Jefferson Davis: A Georgia judge, named after the Father of the Confederacy, is dispensing strange justice in Cherokee, Ga.

Judge Jefferson Davis of the Cherokee Circuit Court has been threatening defendants with longer sentences if they insist upon exercising their constitutional right to appeal.

Several defendants, who have been sentenced by Judge Davis, have also complained about physical beatings. The FBI is investigating police brutality and civil rights violations under the judge's jurisdiction.

The judge wrote to one defendant's lawyer, Darvin R. Purdy of Atlanta, offering this deal: "No appeal would be filed if I consented to let your client work on the garbage detail for a six months' period. If you desire an appeal, it would be my purpose to let the 12 months' sentence stand."

Another attorney, Robert Benham of Cartersville, Ga., told us a similar, improper deal had been offered to his client. Judge Davis also sentenced two young blacks to seven months in the slammer for refusing to move their vehicle from the highway. The sentence was later reduced to six weeks.

Footnote: The judge at first declined comment but then said: "Yes . . . I'm certainly not going through an appeals case if I'm going to give them work release sentences. That's a compassionate gesture." There is no evidence that he had anything to do with the beatings

Slash college costs through Advanced Placement

Sylvia Porter

If your school participates in the Advanced Placement Program, you may be able to slash your college costs by gaining college credit at more than 1,500 colleges and universities across the nation. You even may start college as a sophomore and take a three-year (instead of a four-year) B.A. degree. But to make these possibilities available to you, your high school principal must return your school's Advanced Placement participation form to the College Entrance Examination Board by Nov. 1.

Thus, this column is an urgent reminder to you and your school to meet the November deadline for a program that will save you both time and major sums of money. If, for instance, you had been one of the students who last year earned the required grades on an AP exam, you could have received the equivalent of six to eight semester hours or 10 to 12 quarter hours of credit, and saved up to $1,000. If you were granted a full year of college credit, you could have saved from $2,000 to $5,000.

To give you an even more specific illustration, Cliff Baumen, a senior who graduated in 1974 from Bayside High School in Queens, N.Y., entered the State University of New York at Binghamton this fall. As a result of his performance on AP exams, he is receiving one year of college credit in biology and one full semester of credit in American history and calculus.

Credit by examination is the most prevalent method by which colleges grant credit for what you already know — and in 1974 alone, more than 65,000 students from coast to coast wrote over 85,000 Advanced Placement exams.

More than 35,000 high schools — an increase of 4 per cent over the previous year — offered advanced placement courses to their students in 15 subject-matter areas: English, calculus (two courses), American history, European history, biology, chemistry, physics (three courses), classics (two courses), studio art, history of art, music, French language, French literature, German literature, Spanish literature. Of the more than 1,500 colleges and universities awarding Advanced Placement, college credit, or both to AP students, about 200 colleges consider acceptable grades on three or more AP exams as evidence that the student has done work comparable to a year's college program.

Through AP, more than 5,500 students are potentially eligible for sophomore standing each year. At Harvard alone this past September, 290 students were considered eligible for sophomore standing as a result of their performance on the exams.

Each May, students write thousands of essays and objective examinations covering the knowledge they have gained in AP courses during the year. The essay exams are read and graded on a five-point scale by approximately 425 teachers and professors who gather from all over the country at the annual Advanced Placement reading in June. Each student's paper and the reader's grade is reported to the student's college.

Even if your school does not have an official Advanced Placement program, look into the possibility of taking the AP exams. Schools offer college-level learning experiences in many forms — such as an honors class, a strong regular course, tutorial, or independent study.

In fact, among the 60,863 Advanced Placement participants in 1974, nearly 3,000 studied for and took the AP tests on their own. In art and music, more than 20 per cent of all candidates were independent learners.

The fee is $29 per examination — substantially less than you would pay for a college course for one semester.

AP is only one of two national programs of college credit by examination, the other being the College-Level Examination Program (CLEP). Both are sponsored by the College Board. Also widely used are the College Proficiency Tests, offered through the New York State Dept. of Education. (Details on these in a future column.) But if you are interested in learning more about AP — and I remind you again, your school's time for eligibility next year is growing short—ask your counselor or teacher if you can get AP courses.

If your school does not offer AP, write to the College Board, Box 1903, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Publisher's Notebook

Those last 3,400 miles

By ALAN GOULD, Jr.
With apologies to Bobby Westbrock, our longtime pro in the travelogue department, this is to be a somewhat personal column today rather than a discussion of newspaper fun.

For the better part of two weeks we were gone, my wife and I, on a 3,700-mile motor trip. We had never seen our two grandsons in their native habitat and had not seen them at all in almost a year.

They're the only grandsons we have and are in the growing-est of stages — within a few weeks of each other at approximately 18 months apiece.

The complication is that one lives with his father and mother in Hattiesburg, Miss. and the other with equally adoring parents in Manhattan, Kan. The desire to visit was always here while we awaited the "sign" from circumstance. And this, you'll probably agree, is the kind of cockeyed reasoning that at other times leads to late delivery of your newspaper or a misspelling of a friend's name in The Record.

The circumstance: We were committed to attend the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Publishers' Assn. being held the first three days in October, this year at Seven Springs, a Buck Hill sort of place below Pittsburgh.

As long as we were going 300 miles in sort of the right direction, the reasoning goes, why not take the headstart, an extra week, and keep going to Mississippi and Kansas? In other words, the first 300 miles are the hardest if you're going to go 3,700.

Strangely enough it worked out. Small portions of 14 states came and went. The gouged strip-mined areas of Ohio, the hills of Kentucky, fields of ripe (if that's the word) cotton in Mississippi and Arkansas, the atomic power plant between Little Rock and Fort Smith, the rolling Ozarks, pumps at work in oil wells in Oklahoma, bumps (no more than that) to punctuate the flat fields of Kansas, twice over the muddy Mississippi.

Trying to get through Tulsa caused the most aggravation although there were a couple of hours on the way home Saturday afternoon that irked. It was time to try for the World Series on Saturday afternoon radio but every clear station was carrying the momentous Illinois-Minnesota football game.

On the way out we drove within the shadow of Riverfront Stadium in Cincinnati where the World Series was to begin in less than a day and on the way back we looked from I-70 down on the Kansas City sports complex where the Chiefs would annihilate Oakland a few hours later.

Practically all the driving is on interstates. If we had wanted to take the long way around from Hattiesburg to Manhattan via St. Louis, it would have been four-laners all the way. But the rules aren't the same even though the speed limits are consistently posted at 55.

In Pennsylvania and Ohio as we started on I-70 the great bulk of the traffic stayed under 60 mph. But it was as though the green flag had been dropped after the river was crossed into Kentucky. You got dirty looks if you were below 60.

Kentucky suffers from another peculiarity. While you're pushing to reach a stopping spot by 8 p.m. you suddenly find, via the radio, that it's only 7 and you have an extra hour on the race track. The time zone changes in a wavy line between Louisville and Bowling Green.

Another realization: once you get to Hattiesburg, Miss. and look up you find you're west of places like Fort Wayne and Chicago. While you thought you were driving pretty much south, you were going almost as much west.

The kids — and their kids — are healthy, like what they're doing and where they're living. Yup, even in Hattiesburg. It was a dandy, easy trip.

Except for Tulsa, where they're putting a skyscraper up in the middle of a highway but are short on detour signs, the only delay came on the final lap. About a mile east from where 380 curves into confluence with I-80 in the Poconos, construction limited traffic to one lane. On Sunday night two lanes would have been crowded. It cost about 25 minutes which by that time we could afford. It was much tougher on the carloads of kids mom and dad were trying to get home for dinner in New Jersey after a 100-mile trip into the mountains.

Oil field transfer continues

By United Press International
Four more American oil technicians have arrived at the Ras Sudar oil complex in the Sinai to help in transferring control of the fields captured by Israel in the 1967 Middle East war to Egypt, the Israeli national radio said Sunday.

It brought to seven the number of Mobil Oil Co. technicians at the field on the Gulf of Suez which Israel is scheduled to surrender Nov. 15 under the interim peace agreement with Egypt.

President Anwar Sadat told Parliament Saturday night in Cairo that Egypt is still prepared to go to war despite the peace accord with Israel negotiated by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Family Fare

Selection of kitchen utensils makes a difference in cooking

EASTON — Perhaps you are thinking of getting yourself a new set of pots and pans. You will see many different kinds advertised. In today's energy crunch, it will pay you to look further than surface appearance. Make your first consideration energy efficiency, then select a style which appeals to you.

Any pot or pan should be easy for you to keep clean. It should have straight sides and a flat smooth bottom to make firm contact with the surface unit. (This is particularly important if your range has a thermostatically controlled surface unit.)

Avoid pots with recessed bottoms and grooves. Discard pans which are dented or warped . . . these not only waste heat, but can shorten the life of the surface unit.

Every pan should have a snug-fitting lid to hold heat in the pot and speed up the cooking process. The temperature in a covered pan can be as much as 20 degrees higher than an uncovered pan, and thus hasten cooking time.

The sizes you select will relate to your family size and the foods you usually cook. The right size pan will hold the food comfortably without overcrowding, but not be so big that you need an excessive amount of water or a large surface unit when a small will do.

Consider medium weight aluminum. It conducts heat evenly and quickly. Although it may discolor, it is fairly simple to keep shiny bright.

Stainless steel needs a partner. Used alone, this material heats slowly and unevenly.

Earthenware is a good choice for oven use. It conducts heat slowly and evenly and retains it well so it is excellent for casseroles. However, it is likely to craze, crack or break if improperly handled.

A Pressure Cooker is well worth considering. It is the best energy-saver of all. Because the temperature inside a pressure cooker may be as high as 250 deg. F., it cooks food in approximately one-third the time needed in a conventional pan. This adds up to fuel savings, especially with less tender cuts of meat.

Look over your collection of pots and pans. Be sure they will help you to efficiently manage the energy in your range.

But if it has a bottom of copper or aluminum, these objections are overcome and the material is an energy-saver. Stainless steel is quite easy to keep clean, but pot bottoms will need special attention.

Glass saves energy. When you bake in ovenproof glass, you should always lower oven temperature 25 degrees if using a recipe developed with metal pans. If you use glass for surface cooking, always use a wire grid to prevent breakage.

Glass-Ceramic is stronger than ordinary oven proof glass, and is resistant to temperature changes. For instance, a glass ceramic casserole can be moved from the freezer into a preheated oven. However, this material is not ideal for fry pans, since it heats unevenly and changes temperature slowly.

Look over your collection of pots and pans. Be sure they will help you to efficiently manage the energy in your range.

Even hurricanes can't budge state legislature

By JOHN L. MOORE
Offaway News Service
Harrisburg Bureau

HARRISBURG — Even memories of hurricanes Agnes and Eloise can't prod the Pennsylvania legislature into acting swiftly on a matter of vital concern to flood-prone communities — pending legislation to give the state power to regulate construction in flood plains.

Ever since Agnes, the state Department of Environmental Resources has been calling for the legislature to enact a law giving DER the right to say what can and cannot be built in flood areas.

Legislation introduced in the months immediately following hurricane Agnes in 1972 died when the legislature's 1971-72 term expired. The bill hadn't been given much consideration when the session ended, and the bill died.

In 1973, Sen. Franklin L. Kury began his first term in the Senate by introducing legislation to give DER the power to regulate flood plain construction.

But the bill died when the 1973-74 legislative session expired last year. The Senate had passed it, but it sat in the House of Representatives for months.

When the 1974-75 legislative term began in January, Kury began a big push to get the flood plain bill approved by the legislature.

But by September, the move to enact the bill was losing momentum. The Senate had passed the bill, but once again, the bill was being sidelined in the House.

Then, along came hurricane Eloise and the flood of 1975, the Susquehanna River's third worst flood in 110 years.

Within a week after the Eloise flood, the Kury bill was approved by the House.

But opponents of the bill had amended it so that by the time the House passed it, the bill differed from the bill passed earlier by the Senate.

Capitol opinion

System needs overhaul

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following represents the opinion of observers of political and governmental events at the state Capitol.

By THOMAS FERRICK JR.
HARRISBURG (UPI) — It's time for a major overhaul of the committee system in the Pennsylvania Legislature.

We have the traditional committees with the usual titles in both chambers — Appropriations, Consumer Protection, Rules, State Government, Transportation, and so on.

And although names should fit functions, it just doesn't happen that way in the legislature.

So herewith is a modest proposal:

Abolish all legislative committees and replace them with eight new ones whose titles describe their duties. This would streamline a cumbersome system and perhaps save some tax money. What follows are some suggested names.

The Committee of Happiness and Delight: This committee would handle all pay increases for legislators and arrange junkets and dinners with lobbyists.

This function is currently spread among all the committees, so putting it in one would probably save tax money. There may have to be a Wildlife Management Subcommittee to arrange nights out on the town for legislators while they are in session.

The Committee of Dead Ends: This committee's job would be to kill legislation. This new committee would be especially useful in handling reform bills and gubernatorial nominations to the Public Utility Commission.

It also would make reporters' jobs easier. For instance, when the House finally passes a legislative code of ethics this year we'll have to waste words and space telling you how the Senate is going to kill the bill.

Wouldn't it be much better to read a news story that says:

"The Pennsylvania House today passed a tough new code of ethics for legislators and the bill was immediately sent to the Senate Dead End Committee."

The Committee of Understanding: The special interests need their own committee and this is it. This is where legislators could reach an understanding with lobbyists about bills.

There would have to be a Subcommittee on Incredible Deals to handle outrageous legislation like the teachers' pension bill.

The Committee of Hatred and Spite: This committee would consolidate all the partisan fighting, outrageous charges and low blows into one neat package.

It could hold investigations that savage innocent people.

This meant the bill had to go to a House-Senate conference committee appointed to work out a compromise bill acceptable to both chambers.

Last Tuesday, the committee, albeit with some controversy, produced a compromise bill, and Kury, the committee chairman, announced there was an excellent chance the Senate would vote to approve or reject the conference report on Wednesday.

Had the Senate acted Wednesday, the bill could have been considered by the House Thursday.

But the Senate did not act on the bill Wednesday. Kury said he couldn't get the needed signatures from conference committee members on the conference bill in time to get it printed before the Senate convened Wednesday. Since the Senate doesn't consider bills unless they have been printed, this meant the Senate couldn't consider the conference bill Wednesday.

And since the Senate is always eager to recess, the bill cannot be considered until mid-November. This is because the Senate decided to break early last week.

Because the Senate didn't act on the bill, the House couldn't act on the bill last week even though the House was scheduled to be in session Thursday. This is because of protocol. Since Kury introduced the legislation initially, and because Kury is a senator, the Senate is the first to consider a conference report, Kury explained.

The senator said he doesn't expect the delay to hurt the bill's eventual chances for passage.

However, had the legislature acted promptly last week, there was a chance the bill could have been approved by both chambers and submitted to Gov. Shapp for his signature.

But the legislature did not act speedily last week.

It rarely does.

Fibroid tumors noncancerous

I am confused. Are there different types of fibroid tumors of the uterus? Is one more dangerous than the other? Must they all be removed by surgery?

Mrs. H.P.E., Del.

Dear Mrs. E.:

All fibroid tumors of the uterus (womb) are considered to be benign or noncancerous.

The main difference is their position in the uterus.

The greatest number of fibroids grow within the muscle wall of the uterus. A smaller number are attached to the outer covering of the womb, and still others originate in the inner lining of the womb.

These benign noncancerous tumors are not in themselves dangerous. Occasionally, fibroids reach a large size and may cause pressure on the bladder. Consequently, urinary symptoms are produced.

Similarly, by their large size, pressure may be made on the large bowel and produce symptoms related to it.

These tumors are recognized quickly during routine vaginal examination. Once a diagnosis is made, the fibroid tumor is inspected regularly by the doctor who determines the kind of treatment he believes will be most effective.

When fibroid tumors grow large and produce symptoms of pressure, or when there is unusual bleeding during or between menstrual periods, the possibility of surgery is considered.

In some instances it is possible to "shell out" a fibroid tumor without removing the uterus.

FIBROSITIS

Dr. Thomas F. Snyder, D.C.

Fibrositis is a sort of cousin to arthritis and it tends to alleviate more quickly with treatment than arthritis. It can affect practically any joint in the body and is usually due to inflammation and traumatic experience to the area that is affected. It is often felt as a module in or around the joint which is caused by fibrous tissue, which is deposited in the tissue of the affected area. Much like a scar tissue which develops on healing of a wound.

Treatment is readily available for Fibrositis condition through Chiropractic care.

(One of a series of articles published in the public interest to explain and illustrate the scientific practice of Chiropractic, written by Dr. Thomas Franklin Snyder, Chiropractic Orthopedist, Brodheads, Pa. 18322, Phone 992-4787)

Each case is individually evaluated by the family physician and the consulting gynecologist.

Once the diagnosis of fibroid tumor is made, cooperation between the patient and the physician insures against unusual problems arising from this condition.

The skin under my arms and between my legs are in a constant state of burning. Sometimes the itching is unbearable. I live on a farm.

Mr. H.R., W.V.

Dear Mr. R.:

Unless you are specifically allergic to plants, weeds or animals you must seek another reason.

The symptom you describe may be a condition known as "intertrigo," commonly known as "chafing."

Almost always it occurs when two skin surfaces rub together where there is warmth and moisture. This commonly happens in the groin, in the spaces between fingers and in the armpits.

Heavy people are particularly prone to the burning and the itching that accompanies this.

When the condition goes untreated, bacterial and fungus infections complicate matters.

Scrupulous personal hygiene and dusting powders are beneficial.

If allergy is the cause, antihistamine drugs prescribed by your doctor will help.

Although you may live a considerable distance from your doctor, it is important that this condition be seen by him so that the exact diagnosis can be established and a specific treatment begun.

I have been told that it is possible to test eyes for glasses by a machine, without need of a doctor. Is this so?

Mr. T.R., Ohio

Dear Mr. R.:

A number of machines have been devised for the purpose of testing the eyes.

Their greatest value lies in testing those people who cannot accurately respond to the doctor's questions during his examination.

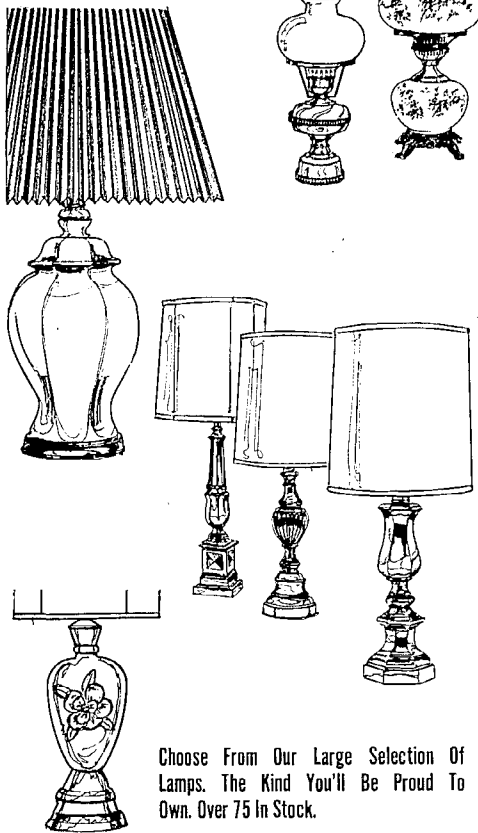

These instruments are still being refined. At the present time, they cannot substitute for the individual interpretation that only an eye specialist can give to the patient.

Your Horoscope

Frances Drake

ARIES (March 21 to April 20) — The position of Mars indicates that this is a time to step up efforts. Mix with those who encourage your desire to achieve.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21) — You will have less opposition in some areas than you expect. Take the bit by the teeth: put beliefs, intuitive ideas actively to work.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21) — Don't mix pleasure with business to the detriment of either — or both. In discussions, listen BEFORE you speak. A day for caution.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23) — There will be many avenues to success open now. With diligence and good judgment, you should be able to rack up gratifying results and build an even firmer foundation for future gains.

LEO (July 24 to August 23) — Job and business matters should gain momentum, but be careful to avoid losses through haste, illogical thinking. Some "super" hours in which to advance.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23) — Readiness to adapt to duties and those "extras" which do not always please but MUST be handled will be the key to day's success. Marshal your fine forces early.

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23) — Stellar influences excellent! Especially favored: artistic pursuits, home and family concerns, romance and social activities.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 22) — Avoid extremes and don't misjudge others' intentions or actions. Work may seem strenuous, persons about you difficult to get along with, but you CAN cope.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21) — Frustration CAN be avoided; so indecision and lack of faith in your own talents. Meet with others to talk over mutual problems and possible opposition.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20) — Don't make decisions while under stress, and don't write anything you may later regret. Maintain your equanimity even if dealing with persons who annoy you.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19) — Avoid tendencies to procrastinate. Handle all matters in the order of their importance and, under pressure, stress the Aquarian's innate ingenuity and sense of humor.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20) — A fine day for personality development and general advancement. Don't veer off on tangents, however, or good effort will be wasted.

YOU BORN TODAY are unusually versatile and, like the Gemini, could scatter energies but, because you tend to be through (even too meticulous at times), you seldom drop a project before it is completed. You have an impressionable mind — a good asset if carefully controlled.

Opening lead — five of hearts.

If you examine all four hands, it seems impossible to make six clubs after West leads a heart. But the fact is that South made the slam — without seeing the East-West cards — and did so in a perfectly reasonable manner.

Declarer was Jean Besse, Swiss star, and the hand was played in the annual European championship. Besse realized, when dummy came down, that East almost surely had the ace of spades for his four heart bid — and consequently there was little chance of making the slam by simply playing a spade toward the king in the hope of finding West with the ace.

Instead, after winning the heart lead with the ace and cashing the A-K-Q of clubs and four diamond tricks, Besse crossed to dummy with a trump, producing this position:

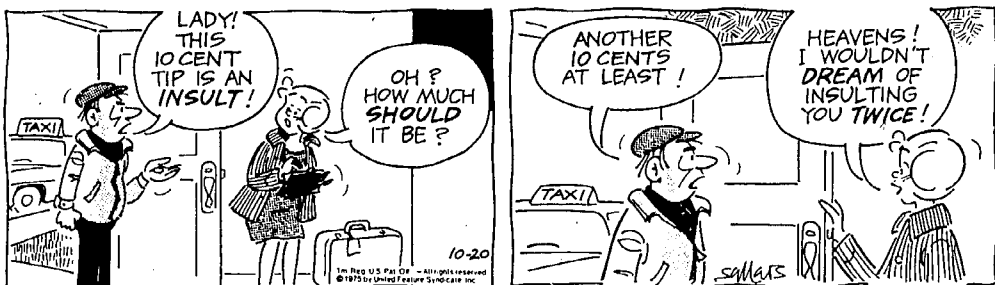

West North East
♠ 9 8 ♠ K 10
♥ 9 ♥ 4
♦ 9 8 ♦ 9

Besse now played the nine of clubs from dummy and poor East found himself up against it for a discard. He realized that he could not afford to part with a heart, which would automatically hand South an extra heart trick, so he discarded the queen of spades instead.

Besse responded to this move by discarding the ten of hearts from his hand and leading the ten of spades from dummy. East won with the ace but then had to yield the last two tricks to the king of hearts and king of spades.

Taking kids along

There comes a time in a child's life when he no longer wants to travel with his parents as a matched set.

It's called the "Do I have to go with you?" syndrome.

Parents who have been reared in the "forced anything" period (forced feeding, forced bedtime, forced sweaters, forced laxatives, forced good times, etc.) will usually say, "Of course you have to go. You'll have a good time."

They will live to bite their tongues.

Traveling with an antagonistic child is about as much fun as finding a pregnant mouse in your workshop.

They aren't out of the driveway before they will demand the answers to the following questions:

1. "When we gonna go home?"
2. "Who will be there?"
3. "What is there to do, and do they have a dog?"
4. "How long does it take to get there?"

World relief

RICHMOND, Va. — Southern Baptists gave more than $1.2 million for world relief during the first eight months of 1975, according to the Southern Baptist Convention's Foreign Mission Board. At its September meeting, the Board also approved appointment of a missionary to Spain and allocated some $89,000 in response to flood damage in Brazil and $85,000 for refugee work in Angola, Thailand, Portugal and Ft. Chaffee, Ark., site of one of the Vietnamese refugee camps in the United States.

5. "Is the TV set in the room where the adults talk?"

6. "Do they have any kids?" (Expand on sexes, ages, interests and whether or not they are going to be home.)

7. "Are we going to eat there?"

8. "Can I stay in the car and wait for you?"

I keep waiting for the bicentennial spots to pay tribute to those brave bands of parents who boarded the Mayflower in 1620, headed for a new land with a kid who wanted to stay in England.

I can hear him now. "When are we going to get there?"

"Sixty-six days."

"Bummer. There's nothing to do."

"Try lashing yourself to the mast to keep from being washed overboard."

"I did that yesterday," he says. "Tell me again where we're going."

"Virginia."

(Later) "This isn't Virginia. It's Massachusetts."

"So we lied."

"Hey, why don't you get settled and I'll just wait on the boat. All I see are a bunch of turkeys."

"Get off the boat and at least say hello to them."

"I hope they got a phone," he mumbles.

And that's the way it was . . . and is . . . and will be . . .

Mrs. Carolina Riboldi
EAST STROUDSBURG — Mrs. Carolina Riboldi, 78, of 43 North Fifth St., Bangor and formerly of Gilbert, died Friday at the General Hospital of Monroe County, East Stroudsburg. She was the widow of Anselmo Riboldi.

Born in Piacenza, Italy, she had been an area resident for the past 35 years, prior to that in Brooklyn, N.Y.

She is survived by three sons, Alexander Riboldi of New Hyde Park, N.Y.; Joseph Riboldi of Gilbert and Ceaser P. Riboldi of Elmont, L.I., N.Y.; a daughter, Mrs. Marie A. Shelton of Lake Worth, Fla.; a brother, Joseph Cantoria of New York City; nine grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren.

A Mass of Christian Burial will be celebrated at 10:30 a.m. today from St. Luke's Roman Catholic Church, Stroudsburg, with the Rev. Francis G. Barrett as celebrant. Burial will be in the Gates of Heaven Section of Laurelwood Cemetery, Stroudsburg.

The Daniel G. Warner Funeral Home, Stroudsburg is in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. Edna Makosky
NORTH BANGOR — Mrs. Edna (Rasely) Markosky, 76, of North Bangor, died Saturday at home. She was the wife of the late Joseph Makosky and earlier the late Jacob Rasely.

Born in Bangor, she was a daughter of the late Charles and Jennie (Flory) Parsons. She had lived in Stroudsburg before moving back to Bangor 12 years ago. She was of the Catholic faith.

Surviving are two sons, Charles Reasly, of Bangor R.D. 3; Jacob Rasely of Tannersville; four daughters, Mrs. Jennie Bellis, of Ackermanville; Mrs. Ellen Riley, Bangor R.D. 3; Mrs. Lydia Stackhouse of Ackermanville and Mrs. Catherine Rasley of Pen Argyl; 17 grandchildren and 22 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday from the Reed Funeral Home, Johnsonville, with the Rev. Robert Galehus, officiating. Burial will be in Plainfield Township Cemetery. Viewing will be 7-9 p.m. today at the funeral home.

Voting inspectors named

MILFORD — Four persons have been named as voting machine inspectors in four municipalities in Pike County.

Pike County Commissioners named the following persons as inspectors: Elaine Zenes, Matamoras Borough II; Oscar Aanonsen, Lackawaxen Township; Dorothy Cassel, Palmyra Township and Ivah Hoey, Milford Borough.

In other business, the commissioners acted on 15 appeals on over 6,000 notices of changes in assessment. Only five of the 15 appeals were denied.

Commissioners also accepted $18,707 in revenue sharing funds for the first quarter of 1975-76. The county has received a total of $326,580 in revenue sharing funds to date.

In comparison, the county and municipalities received $63,187 for the first quarter of this year and $827,114 in revenue sharing funds since payments began.

Commissioners also took the following actions:

- Granted permission to Nicholas Argeros to start painting the exterior of the courthouse in the spring.
- Accepted $2,939 from the state on a public utility realty tax. The tax is levied by the state on the installation of utilities. Because of a state budget deficiency, Pike County only received 97 per cent of the total amount due.

Fred Waring show draws 2,000 to ESSC

EAST STROUDSBURG — Choralmaster Fred Waring believes in making entertaining music, and judging from the 2,000-plus turnout at his concert Saturday night, many people agree with him.

Saturday at East Stroudsburg State College, Waring presented his Waring Blenders and Young Pennsylvanians in a potpourri of movie and popular music that was easy listening in the best sense of the term.

The younger of the 20 singers took over the first half of the Blood drive today

EAST STROUDSBURG — A Red Cross blood drive will be conducted from 12:45-5:45 p.m. today in the East Stroudsburg Methodist Church.

The drive, sponsored by the East Stroudsburg Ministerium, has a quota of 125 pints.

Persons between 17 and 66 years old and in good health may donate. Persons 17 years old need written parental permission.

WIPE OUT — Sixteen year-old Robert Hemhauser of East Stroudsburg R.D. 2 suffered minor injuries Saturday morning when he lost control of his car, struck two utility poles, a pickup truck and several mailboxes on Rte. 611 in Stroud Township. Power to the neighborhood was off for up to six hours for five customers and 90 minutes for 397 Pennsylvania Power and Light Co. customers.

Police, fire calls

Four cars collide, no injuries

STROUDSBURG — No one was injured in a four car accident at 5:45 p.m. Friday at the intersection of Rte. 611 and Chipperfield Drive.

Stroud Township police said John E. Stanford, 73, of 618 King St., Stroudsburg, was southbound in the center lane waiting to turn left onto Chipperfield and pulled in front of a car operated by Joanne Lynn Garber, 21, of Swiftwater.

The Garber car struck the rear of the Stanford vehicle and slid into a parked car owned by Mildred Whittaker, of 46 N. Kistler St., East Stroudsburg.

The Whittaker car was pushed into a second parked car owned by John H. Hillyerd, of 14 Broad St., East Stroudsburg. Police estimated total damages as $1,900.

N.Y. man killed in Wayne wreck

ARLINGTON — A Brooklyn man was killed and his two passengers injured in a one-car accident Saturday when his car left the road for an unknown reason.

George Michael Gardiner, 28, was pronounced dead on arrival at Community Medical Center in Scranton.

Injured were his nephew, Richard Figuera, four, and his daughter, Michelle O'Rourke, four, both of Brooklyn. They were discharged from the Community Medical Center Sunday.

State police said Gardiner was driving west on Rte. 590 in Salem Township at 12:45 p.m. when the car left the road and entered a culvert. The car was demolished.

Lake Ariel woman, son injured

LAKE ARIEL — A Lake Ariel woman was in guarded condition Sunday in the intensive care unit of Wayne Memorial Hospital after a one-car accident Saturday night.

Donna Gilpin, 22, was listed in guarded condition while her son, William, two was in satisfactory condition. Bradley Gilpin, 28, the driver, was treated and released. All of them live at Lake Ariel R.D. 2.

State police at Honesdale said the Gilpin car was headed north on Rte. 196 a half mile south of Lake Township when it went off the left side of the road and struck a tree.

Police said the car was demolished and that it was raining at the time of the accident.

Man trapped in wrecked auto

MOUNT POCONO — Five units were called to rescue a man trapped in his car for almost two hours Friday night after a one-car accident.

Harry J. Thomas, 28, of 104 Acorn Lane, Pocono Farms, was listed in satisfactory condition Sunday in the General Hospital of Monroe County.

Coolbaugh Township Ambulance, Pocono Township police, Marshalls Creek rescue squad, Mount Pocono police and state police at Swiftwater were called to the accident on Rte. 196 three miles north of Mount Pocono.

State police said Thomas was traveling north when his car left the east berm, struck a tree and came to rest facing northeast partly in the northbound lane and partly on the east berm.

The accident left no skid marks and caused $4,000 damage.

Van does somersaults on I-80

TANNERSVILLE — Four Western Pennsylvania men were treated at the General Hospital of Monroe County late Friday after their van turned over twice on Interstate 80.

Admitted to the hospital was Robert Cafrelli, 25, of Pittsburgh, who was listed in satisfactory condition Sunday.

Also treated were Stephen Kukucka, 25, of Ebensburg, Kenneth Noel, 24, and Eric Hicks, 24, both of Pittsburgh. Four other men were uninjured.

State police at Swiftwater said the van was traveling east between exits 44 and 45 in the left lane when it went out of control on the wet pavement at 9:40 p.m.

The van left the road on the medial strip and overturned twice before coming to rest upright, partly blocking the left westbound lane.

Man stops to help, ends up in wreck

WIND GAP — James Jones, 33, of Catauqua, stopped on Rte. 33 in Ross Township Saturday at 12:45 a.m. to help a disabled vehicle and became the third driver involved in a three-vehicle accident.

State police at Swiftwater said Jones parked in front of a disabled truck owned by George Illingworth, 30, of Gwynedd.

A vehicle operated by Gary Brenhouse, 24, of Elretiro, N.Y., hit the rear of Illingworth's truck, pushing it into Jones' car. No damage estimates were listed.

Arson blamed for two fires

BUSHKILL — Bushkill fire chief Robert Rohner said two separate fires at Stony Hollow Village Saturday afternoon were "definitely set."

Minimum damage was caused to the buildings, both of which were slated for demolition, he said.

A telephone company man, Nick Scurbo, working up a pole spotted the fire and pulled a burning mattress out of one building, then stomped out the fire in the other structure.

Rohner said although five trucks and 22 men responded to the 4:29 p.m. alarm, only one truck could fit over the small narrow bridge which is the only access to the village.

Cabin burns at Tamiment

BUSHKILL — A small unoccupied cabin used to house employees of the Tamiment Resort and Country Club burned down early Saturday morning in a fire still under investigation by Bushkill fire department.

According to fire chief Robert Rohner, 26 men, four juniors and four trucks answered the 2:20 a.m. call. They were able to save the cabin next to it, only eight feet away.

Did Monroe 'hire' D&A staff?

By BRUCE POSTEN
Pocono Record Reporter

MILFORD — Two counties in the Tri-County Drug & Alcohol (D&A) Unit have refused to be named as employers of D&A personnel.

Pike and Carbon County commissioners have approved a D&A personnel agreement, but deleted a paragraph that would have given the counties employer status.

Monroe County Commissioners have apparently signed the agreement without any qualifications even though they also claim the state is the actual employer of D&A personnel.

All three county boards of commissioners have maintained that the state is the employer because it provides 90 per cent of the funding for the D&A program and also sets salary scales and employment qualifications. However, as far as the state is concerned the counties are the employers.

Pike County Commissioners deleted paragraph four of the agreement Thursday after conferring with commissioners in Carbon County. The paragraph states that Pike, Monroe and Carbon Counties are the employers of D&A personnel.

George Coutts, Pike County commissioner, said approval of the agreement as written might affect a court litigation between the counties and agency employees.

Carbon County is spearheading the court battle for the three counties to determine whether the state or county is the employer, Coutts said.

County commissioners feel they should not have to negotiate with the employees or pay social security benefits because of extensive state control over the program.

Employees of D&A and the Mental Health and Mental Retardation Unit (MHMR) have petitioned to be recognized as a union and have joined the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSME).

The employees are currently asking the courts to settle the employer's status so negotiations can be conducted for benefits and wages.

"The whole thing is currently in the courts," Coutts said. "Although Monroe County approved it in total, we felt that signing the agreement without deleting that paragraph would have violated our previous stand."

Monroe County Commissioners Arlington Martin and Nancy Shukaitis said they could not recall signing the agreement.

"We had a call about this over the weekend, but I don't recall us acting on it," Martin said.

"I would hope we didn't act on it, but we are checking to see and will probably know Monday," he said.

Mrs. Shukaitis checked the county D&A file Sunday and said she had no record of the board of commissioners signing the agreement.

Coutts described the D&A agreement as a "general state-wide type of contract specifying civil service rights and personnel matters."

STROUDSBURG — A hearing to determine if a Stroudsburg R.D. 2 juvenile can be tried as an adult was continued until Thursday at 4:30 p.m.

Judge James R. Marsh granted the continuation from a 10 a.m. Saturday hearing to provide an opportunity for the youth's parents to attend, according to assistant district attorney C. Daniel Higgins.

The 17-year-old is accused of participating in the theft of guns and weapons from the Marshalls Creek General Store and from the Paradise Shooting Range.

He is also accused of stealing a license plate from a car owned by Martha Hartman, of East Stroudsburg, and a car from Weichel Buick.

The youth is also accused of participating in the theft of checks from Harold Decker, of East Stroudsburg.

A hearing for Todd Kern, 18, of Ransberry Avenue, East Stroudsburg, will be held Wednesday before District Magistrate Gerald Canfield. Kern surrendered with the juvenile.

Poconos turn into autumn sponge

STROUDSBURG — Football games, art shows and homecoming parades are best under blue skies with cool, brisk air.

When such perfect autumn weather failed to materialize this weekend, people were driven indoors where they couldn't even watch the World Series on television. It too had been wiped out by the rain.

Football fans who planned to take in their local high school contest Friday night were disappointed by all but Pleasant Valley High School, which played despite the downpour.

The rest of the high school games were played Saturday night, except for East Stroudsburg, which was re-scheduled for tonight at 7:30 p.m. in Easton.

Homecoming weekend at East Stroudsburg State College was punctuated by a muddy football game and sopping wet parade the next day.

Instead of bustling with artists showing their wares, women selling funnel cakes and owners showing off their antique cars, the streets of Delaware Water Gap were virtually devoid of life Sunday afternoon.

One of the outdoor events planned there, the fifth annual Blaze-of-Color Outdoor Cavalcade of Art, was rescheduled for next weekend — Oct. 25 and 26 from 9 a.m. to dusk. The art show is sponsored by the Pocono Mountain Art Group.

Drivers throughout the area had difficulty controlling their vehicles on wet roadways. Police reported many collisions of varying severity, blamed on slippery roads and poor visibility.

The wind and rain hastened the fall of much multi-colored foliage — adding to the amount of leaves to be raked up next weekend if the weather is dry.

Heavy rains this weekend caused minor problems as small creeks and streams came close to spilling over.

A spokesman for the National Weather Service, Scranton said Sunday a flash flood watch was lifted, since the storm had left the area and remains scattered across New England and upstate New York.

Rainfall for the month of October has already exceeded the normal average rainfall of 2.71 inches. The spokesman said 3.08 inches of rain has fallen this month, most of it in the last two days.

Total rainfall in September was 6.10 inches, which exceeded the average of 2.82 inches for the month.

Weather watcher Harry Kunkle of Effort said the creeks in his areas are "pretty high."

Safety changes urged on gas firm

STROUDSBURG — A federal agency has recommended to Stroudsburg Gas Company that it revise its safety procedures as the result of an investigation into the June 17 gas explosion that destroyed a home at 505 King St., Stroudsburg. The explosion resulted in the death of its occupant, 82-year-old Victor Mion.

In a letter to Rae Cornwall, manager of the Stroudsburg Gas Company, the National Transportation Safety Board described what it found in its investigation and made two recommendations.

The first recommendation was that Stroudsburg Gas Co. review and revise its emergency procedures and its employee training program to insure that houses in a suspected leakage area are entered and checked for gas.

The board found in the Mion case that, although neighbors had twice complained of strong gas odors in the area, gas company personnel only checked the exteriors of the houses. They did not enter them.

The second recommendation was that Stroudsburg Gas Company review and revise its service abandonment procedures to insure that all service lines reported abandoned have been cut and capped at the main.

The investigation showed gas had been leaking from a corrosion hole in a service line that had been capped in the basement of the Mion house.

There had been no gas service to the house in more than eight years, according to the letter. After the accident, the gas company exposed the service line at its connection with the gas main under the street in front of the house.

They found the service line was still connected to the main, although a work order, dated Oct. 23, 1973, indicated that the service line had been disconnected from the main and capped at that time.

The investigation also showed the gas was leaking at several locations under the street, as well as at the corrosion hole in the house.

A Public Utility Commission (PUC) investigation in July had revealed the gas company records showed that gas lines to Mion's home and a nearby residence had been shut off, so the workers only checked in the street, not in neighboring homes as gas safety procedures require.

Cornwall, the gas company manager and safety director for Penn Fuel Gas, the parent firm which owns the company and 19 others, could not be reached for comment.

ESSC president disagrees with Pa. cost-cutting plan

EAST STROUDSBURG — The state could ask East Stroudsburg State College (ESSC) to virtually close its health center, hike tuition and room charges if a committee investigating the state college system has its way.

A panel of businessmen appointed by Gov. Milton J. Shapp to economize in the state college system has recommended that ESSC's health center be closed, and the building converted into a dormitory. The committee suggested the health staff of one doctor, four nurses and a secretary be reduced to one nurse to save $100,000 a year.

Firemen called to Gap motel

DELAWARE WATER GAP — Delaware Water Gap firemen responded to a fire call at 10:50 p.m. Sunday night only to find out someone had discharged a few carbon dioxide extinguishers at the Howard Johnson Motor Lodge. They found no fire.

ESSC President Dr. Darrell Holmes said Sunday the plan would cost more than the present health center, since contracts with local doctors would have to be made.

Holmes also rejected the idea of making students purchase their own health services.

As for converting the center into a dormitory, Holmes said the committee's survey of ESSC was taken during the summer, when there was a shortage of student housing.

Through arrangements with local hotels, 140 students who were tripling up in dormitory rooms now have places to live, he said.

Converting the health center to a dormitory would only provide 10 to 20 additional spaces for students, he commented.

The panel of businessmen also recommended colleges hike the cost per credit from $25 to $33, effectively raising the annual tuition fee from $800 to $990.

"I am totally and categorically opposed to that," Holmes said. "That is ridiculous. I feel that our generation owes this generation a chance for an education."

Holmes added a hike in tuition on top of this year's $50 increase will price middle-income students out of an education.

However, the cost of maintaining dormitories will push the college's room charge up $72 next year to $504 a year, he said.

The committee would like to see the charge rise by at least $60 at each of 14 state colleges and university.

A committee recommendation that faculty be pushed to increase their workloads by 10 per cent is a negotiable item and should be handled by the state, he added.

Board meeting

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Board of Assistance will meet at 1 p.m., Tuesday in the Civil Defense Room of the Monroe County Court House. The public is invited.

WHO'S WATCHING WHOM? — You might think this ESSC coed was attracted to the people watching her parade Sunday from their dorms. But actually, she's taking photo of a float.

Canoeing on Delaware popular, safe during season

By HARRIET LEEDS
Pocono Record Reporter

DELAWARE WATER GAP — The rhythmic tapping of paddles upon the cool murky waters of the Delaware River paused briefly.

The canoeists had stopped to admire the spectacular beauty of the fall foliage as they rounded the bend before the toll bridge at Delaware Water Gap.

The tapping resumed, followed by a sudden splash. The canoe had capsized, submerging its occupants in the 50-degree water.

Although both were good swimmers, the cold water dulled their senses, making coordination of movement difficult.

If the water had been colder, they would have had a good chance of suffering shock and drowning.

The National Park Service, U.S. Geologic Survey and various canoe liveries do not recommend canoeing in the Delaware once the water temperature dips below 50 degrees or so.

National Park Service Chief Ranger Jim Arnott said, "When you capsize in a low water temperature, your chances of survival are less than when the water is warm. It's a condition called hypothermia due to the shock effect of the cold water and emerging into the cold air."

Hypothermia is a medical term for a subnormal body temperature.

"We get a lot of calls, asking 'is it safe?' — and we tell them it depends on the individual," said Robert E. Fish, Delaware River Water Master for the U.S. Geologic Survey.

"If a person is thrown into real cold water, the shock would be kind of bad," he added.

The beginning and end of rental season for canoe liveries along the Delaware depends on the water temperature.

"We don't believe in sending canoees out on the Delaware when it's dangerous. Low water temperature can cause the body to go into shock, and there's the exposure factor," said a spokesman for Kitting's Canoes, Dingman's Ferry.

Kitting's will still be renting canoes into November and then re-open for business in mid-April or the beginning May, again depending on the weather.

The Dingmans Ferry canoe livery has been in business for 23 years, and this summer rented out 400 canoes, 100 more than the previous year.

The spokesman said there has been a definite increase in number of rentals this past summer over the previous summer.

Chamberlain's Canoes noted an increase in business over last year but attributed it partly to the fact that the business was moved from Stroudsburg to Minisink Acres — a riverside site.

Mrs. Judy Chamberlain and her husband have been in the canoe rental business for five years and have 24 canoes.

She said they will close up for winter the last week of October since it's been relatively warm this fall.

"The cold water dulls a person's senses so he can't swim. It paralyzes the nervous system," she said.

The couple are members of the Delaware River Canoe Association, an organization of liveries from Stroudsburg north to Narrowsburg, N.Y.

"Most of the business did very well this year," Mrs. Chamberlain said.

The National Park Service kept records of river traffic volume this summer but did not keep good records the previous summer, Arnott said, so there was no basis for comparison.

"However," he added, "the ranger in charge said it is his belief canoe use increased."

Monroe County Corner Daniel Warner said most Delaware River drownings occur in the summer because that is when river use is heaviest.

Despite heavy river use this summer, there were no drownings resulting from canoe accidents in the section of the river in the Delaware Water Gap National Recreation Area, according to Arnott.

There were some drownings in the river north and south of the recreation area, but none within it, he said.

The coroner said people using the river seem to be using more caution than in previous years. He said he noticed more use of life vests and other safety equipment.

River traffic tapers off quickly after Labor Day, according to Fish, of the U.S. Geologic Survey.

The water temperature has dropped 20 degrees from its warmest summer temperature, Fish said.

"It was 56 degrees this morning," he said, "not terribly cold, but not comfortable for swimming."

The river master described how the river changes through the seasons and concluded, "Summer — from May to September — is the best time to canoe. The water is warm, it's usually but not always low and you can see what you're doing."

In spring, the river is cold from melted snow and higher than in the summer, he said. It is also wider and deeper, so many landmarks are covered. Frequently the river is muddy in spring, the canoeist is unable to see bottom and sometimes rocks are hidden from view.

The rate of flow is also faster in spring, Fish said, so it's harder to slow down and easier to tip over.

Nevertheless, canoeing picks up in April.

"People come out of hibernation, raring to go," Fish said.

ESSC's offensive attack doesn't bog down in mud

By JOE MIEGOC
Record Sports Editor
EAST STROUDSBURG — It may be time to toss out that adage that says a good offense is slowed by a muddy track. East Stroudsburg State College has other beliefs.

Mike Terwilliger threw for three touchdowns and Pete Radocha caught a score, ran for one and threw for another Saturday as the Warriors rolled up their sixth straight victory of the season before a large Homecoming crowd in burying Mansfield, 39-8.

Terwilliger threw for scores of 10 yards to Radocha, 25 to Grey Semans and 13 yards to Tom Palubinski. Radocha then got into the act by throwing six yards to left Jones on a half-back option play and then scored the fifth touchdown on a two-yard run. Mel Riddick got the final score from eight yards out late in the game.

Passing yardage	8	114
Passes	2-8	9-14
Interceptions	0	2
Punts	5-4	2-1
Fumbles-fumbles lost	5-35	6-32

"We felt as long as it wasn't raining," explained Warrior coach Denny Douds, "it wouldn't hurt the throwing game. So the rain really wasn't a factor. We thought we could throw on them, but we wanted to go back to the run, too."

It was a day that wasn't ordered, but nothing went wrong for the unbeaten Warriors. Mansfield was completely throttled by the ESSC defense and didn't score until Mike Kemp ran eight yards with 6:27 left in the game. But the issue was already long decided.

Radocha, capping a drive which covered 78 yards in 16 plays, made a twisting catch of a Terwilliger pass in the front corner of the end zone and kept his feet in to score the first touchdown with 4:54 left in the first period.

The score came after Radocha had bulled for two first downs and caught a 22-yard Terwilliger pass for another. Passes to Gary Laucks, both on good catches, got it to the 13 and three plays later Radocha caught the scoring pass.

The Warrior defense, which held Mansfield to just eight yards passing and 170 rushing, set up the second score when Willard Stem intercepted a Fran Tagalang pass at the ESSC 40 and returned it 30 yards to the Mansfield 30.

Four plays later Terwilliger got Seamans on a curl patter for 25 yards and a 13-0 lead. "We ran some curl pattern on them," Douds said in explaining the attack on Mansfield's four-deep secondary. "Seamans ran one for that touchdown."

Linebacker Doug Sheaffer intercepted a Mansfield pass at the Mountaineers' 42 and returned it seven yards midway in the second period to set up the third score. Terwilliger, with a first down at the Mansfield 12, pitched to Radocha, who straightened up and hit Palubinski, wide open from here to Analomink, for the touchdown.

Radocha has now thrown the pass five times this season, completed all five for two touchdowns and has gained 65 yards.

"Willard and Sheaffer had important interceptions," Douds noted. "But we played well defensively everywhere. They had only one first down in the entire first half. They ran about 22 plays in the first period and I doubt they had 50 for the game. We just played our normal defense, nothing fancy."

The Mountaineers actually had 19 plays in the first half, excluding punts, and totalled four fumbles lost in the game on top of the two interceptions.

Defensive end Bill Bergen pounced on a Mansfield fumble at the Mansfield 28 late in the second period to set up the fourth Warrior touchdown, giving the defense a hand in three to that point.

Terwilliger kept for a first down at the 13 and four plays later hit Jones for the touchdown and a 26-0 halftime edge.

The defense didn't let up in the second half, either, although the issue was decided at intermission. Andy Whittington recovered a Bruce Musselman fumble early in the third period, stopping a drive at the ESSC 18. Zollie Young then recovered a Mike Bova fumble later in the period to set up yet another score.

Young's recovery came at the Mansfield 45 and with reserve quarterback Jim Cantafio in the harness, the Warriors move into the end zone on seven plays, Radocha getting the score from two yards out.

Cantafio picked up 35 yards on three keepers and Radocha took it the last five in two plays for the score and 33-0 lead.

Mansfield waited until the fourth quarter to mount any type of offense at all as it went 51 yards after a Warrior punt to score with just 6:27 left in the game. Kemp ran 18 yards and a personal foul penalty, one of 14 which cost the Warriors 101 yards in the game, moved it to the 10.

On third down Kemp scored on a fake halfback pass when he suckered the secondary back and took off. Bova hit Keith Shanebrook for two on a pass to make it 33-8.

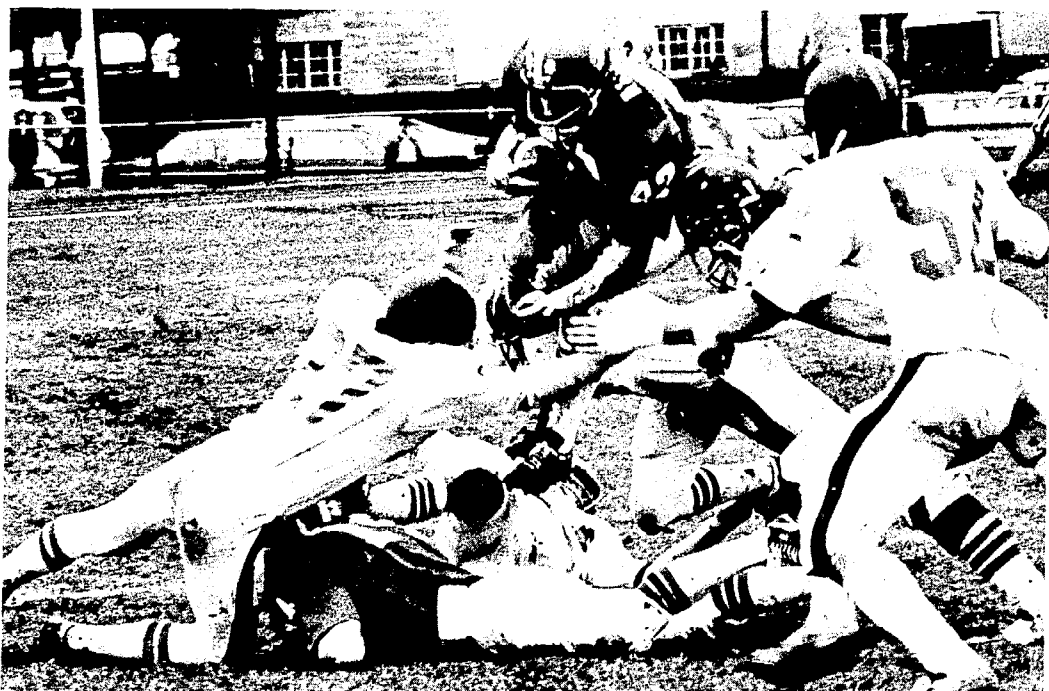

The Warriors' last touchdown came with just 25 seconds remaining when Riddick, after a 45-yard punt return by Stem, bulled eight yards to score.

"It was a good team game," Douds explained. "We need a game like this because everyone got a chance to play. It's good for the morale of the team to have a game like this one."

Football games reset

Heavy rains and wet field conditions forced several scholastic football games to be postponed Saturday.

The key Centennial League contest between East Stroudsburg and Notre Dame of Green Pond has been rescheduled for 7:30 tonight at Easton's Cottingham Stadium.

To reach the field travel South on Rte. 33 to Rte. 22 East. Take the 13th Street exit in Easton to the stadium. In other games rescheduled for today, Pen Argyl travels to Salisbury for a 3 p.m. Colonial League game and Palisades is at Southern Lehigh.

Whitehall demolishes Mounties

By JOE DEVIVO
Record Sports Writer
STROUDSBURG — It may not have been the worst game Stroudsburg ever played under Fred Ross. But it certainly has to rank near the bottom of the pile.

After Ross watched his team record minus 14 yards in total offense, cough up three fumbles, and get walloped 37-0 by Whitehall Saturday night, he had to think for a while to recall a time when more things went wrong all at once.

"I don't think it was the worst game we ever played," he finally said. "I think Northampton might have beat us worse my first year here."

His memory was right. The Konkrete Kids did post a 41-0 victory in 1969, but neither Ross nor Whitehall coach Andy Melosky expected things to be so one-sided Saturday night. "We didn't expect it to turn out this way," Melosky said. "I think it was just a case of a good night for us and a bad night for them. We came ready to play and played mistake-free football."

"We saw Stroudsburg play and watched their films and thought they had an outstanding defense," he added. "We were really concerned about their outside speed on offense."

Unfortunately, the Mounties were never able to put any of their talents to use. Stroudsburg's offensive attack was virtually non-existent the entire night.

Aside from one drive in the first quarter which reached the Whitehall 35 before Bob Til-ross nor Whitehall coach Andy Melosky expected things to be bogged down at the Zephyrs' 30, the Mounties never seriously threatened to score.

Matt Millen, Dan Guzinski, and Ed Gall combined to sack quarterback Jeff Wert six times for 54 yards. In the second half, the Mounties didn't pick up a first down and were saddled with a minus 43 yards in total offense.

Defensively, although the Mounties never stopped hitting, the Zephyrs were able to use their tremendous size advantage to roll up 193 yards on the ground and 113 through the air.

Ross felt the big, talented Whitehall team just plain intimidated his ball club.

"We probably were intimidated by their size," Ross admitted. "We just couldn't handle them. We just got handled. No doubt about it, defensively they're one helluva football team."

Millen was particularly a one-man wrecking crew for the Zephyrs. The 6-1, 230-pound senior led his team in total tackles with seven, trapped Wert in the endzone for a safety, rushed for 39 yards on eight carries, and scored two touchdowns.

The other two key offensive thorns in the Mounties' side were quarterback Jeff Kurtz and halfback Paul Ziegenfuss.

Kurtz connected on five of seven passes for 108 yards in the first half, including a 24-yard TD toss to Bill Roman and was instrumental in setting up the Zephyrs' first three scores with his passing arm.

A 22-yard pass play to Roman put the Zephyrs in position for Millen's one-yard dive in the first period, and a 39-yarder to Steve Panik set the stage for a one-yard sneak by Kurtz early in the second quarter.

Kurtz struck again through the airwaves with two pass plays to Roman, including the 24-yard scoring strike to make it 21-0 at the half.

Ross explained the secondary was fooled by the play action passes all night.

"We were too anxious to stop the run," Ross said. "They just beat us on play action passes."

If there was any one small bright spot for Stroudsburg, it was the gutsy play by some of its defensive players. The Mounties stopped two Whitehall drives deep in Stroudsburg territory at the start of the second half when linebacker Kevin McNally and defensive backs Ron McCuen and Rod Baechold came up with the key plays.

End Al Camaerei, who recovered two fumbles, Mark Fetherman, and linebacker Andy Paffenroth also made some good hits.

"The score doesn't indicate the fact we did hit 'em," Ross said. "Anybody that saw the game knows some of our kids went out and really hit 'em."

"At times we played good defense," he added. "We just made the mistakes of an inexperienced football team."

Unbeaten N.J. Tech downs Warriors, 4-1

NEWARK, N.J. — Undeclared New Jersey Institute of Technology scored two goals in the first half and added a clinching goal early in the second half to defeat East Stroudsburg State College, 4-1, in soccer Saturday.

It was the seventh win against only one tie for the New Jersey team, formerly known as Newark Engineering. ESSC is now 4-4-1.

Although the Warriors had the ball in New Jersey territory 80 per cent of the time in the first half, the Highlanders had the only two scores. The first was by Luis Clement on a pass from Jasar Tambi after 21 minutes and the second by Jay Jaramillo with Joe Griffin credited with an assist after 31 minutes.

Despite being behind, 2-0, at halftime, ESSC Coach John McKeon still thought his team had a good chance to catch up in the second half. But a quick goal by Griffin, following a pass from Ken Hammond, took the drive out of the Warriors after only 2:30 of play.

The final two goals of the game were both on penalty kicks. Hammond converted for New Jersey at the 16:30 mark and BOB Hartman booted one in for ESSC with five minutes remaining.

New Jersey Tech also won a junior varsity game between the two schools, 2-1, on Harold Joseph's goal with six minutes left. Kip Ferguson scored the lone ESSC goal.

The Warriors' varsity will play a home game Wednesday at 3 p.m. against William Paterson.

SWIFTWATER — Beating a team that has managed to score only 13 points in five games is usually nothing to brag about. But for Pocono Mountain, Saturday's 6-0 win over Slatington might be the giant step towards salvaging a respectable season.

The Cardinals, now 2-3-1, had mustered only two offensive touchdowns themselves prior to Saturday's game, but Joe Ortelli's offense "put together the concentration" it needed and despite the low score, dominated the game against the Bulldogs.

John Cooper scored Pocono Mountain's touchdown in the third-quarter after the Cardinals had meshed together a drive that covered 53 yards and ate up over five and a half minutes.

That 10-play drive, in which the Cardinals used slashing runs by Cooper, Carl Robinson and Bill Helbig to eat up the clock, was the first sustained flicker of Pocono Mountain offense since the Cardinals opening game.

The defense, not to be ignored, put together an effort that limited Slatington to just 87 total yards in the game, including a 21 yard offensive output in the second half.

"We got down to thinking some football tonight," Ortelli said after the game. "The kids had to think to win and they did. The concentration finally was there."

However, Ortelli was quick to add, the real test will come Friday when Northwestern visits the Swiftwater school.

"We proved we could put it together, both on offense and defense tonight. In order to make our season, we'll have to do it again against Northwestern. If we do it again then we might be okay for the rest of the season."

Pocono Mountain put it all together for most of the game, the defense holding Slatington to three first downs and the offense running up 229 yards in the air and through the mud.

Several penalties, two fumbles, two pass interceptions and a couple of Bill Kuchinski passes that receivers dropped could have made the score much higher in Pocono Mountain's favor if they had not occurred during the fog-shrouded game.

But, they did, and these mistakes exemplify and kind of errors that Ortelli said his team will have to work to eradicate during practice this week.

Practice does pay, and this week it came from the Cardinals' pass defense, which has been suspect during most of the season.

Pocono Mountain's deep secondary bottled up the Bulldogs' receivers for most of the game, causing quarterback Bob Harwi to run for his life or eat the ball.

Harwi completed four of six passes in the game for 41 yards, but it was the inability of the Slatington receivers to get free that played a key role in the game.

Unable to rely on the pass, Slatington had to go by ground — or by mud — in order to score. Pocono Mountain's defense, keyed by Kuchinski, Cooper, Bob Coolbaugh and front-liners Kent Werkheiser, Harold Binkley and Tim Reed, stopped the Bulldogs' ground attack cold.

"We never play good enough to win," said Slatington coach Richard Snell after the game. "Our kids only play good enough to keep even, but never to win. I can promise you'll see some changes next week."

Slatington mounted only one serious scoring threat midway through the first quarter, when after Harwi had passed 30 yards to tight end Greg Miller, the Bulldogs had a first and 10 from the 19.

The drive ended there, when Binkley recovered Brian Frantz's fumble on the 16 yard line.

For Pocono Mountain, Cooper topped all Cardinal rushers with 55 yards in 14 carries while Helbig, Robinson and Keith Falko split up the remaining 80 yards.

Kuchinski, starting his second game completed five of 11 passes for 94 yards. The total could easily have been eight of 11, had it not been for slippery hands and a slimy ball.

Bill Bramley, the Cardinals leading receiver and scorer last season, who has not seen much action this year, made a diving shoestring catch of a Kuchinski pass in the third quarter.

OFF-TARGET — Stroudsburg defensive back Ron McCuen (left) leaps to bat a third down pass away from Whitehall's Steve Panik (80) during the third quarter of Saturday night's game. Although McCuen broke up this play and the Zephyr drive stalled, the Mounties were no match for Whitehall, 37-0.

Inferior foes find out being in Big Ten isn't fun

By United Press International

The Big Ten is a form of flattery for eight mediocre college football teams.

The "Big Two-Little Eight" tab is even being overly generous.

After what the Big Two did Saturday, "tiny" may be a better word to precede "eight."

Ohio State, the nation's No. 1 ranked team, pounced on Wisconsin, 56-0, and Michigan, the No. 7 team, humiliated Northwestern, 69-0.

The Buckeyes and Wolverines thus relieved a lot of frustrations at the expense of their inferior conference foes. Both Ohio State and Michigan had unusually tough early season schedules.

The battering of Wisconsin was especially bitter to the Big Ten because the Badgers were supposed to join Michigan State this year in cracking the Big Two. Both Wisconsin and Michigan State were preseason Top 20 picks and both were viewed as prospective Rose Bowl participants.

But Wisconsin lost both of its games with the Big Two as did Michigan State.

Wisconsin fumbled 10 times Saturday to all but chromeplate the victory for Ohio State. Pete Johnson scored twice for the Buckeyes with Archie Griffin, Cornelius Greene, Tim Fox, Lou Willotti, Jeff Logan and Rod Gerald also registering touchdowns.

"Ohio State is as good a football team as you will find in the country and when we make these mistakes it just makes it worse," said Wisconsin Coach John Jardine.

The Buckeyes held Wisconsin tailback Billy Marek, an all-Big Ten and honorable mention all-America selection last season, to just 37 yards, leaving him still 75 yards short of the 3,000 yard career rushing mark.

Johnson's two touchdowns gave him 16 for the season, four short of the Ohio State single season record set in 1972 by another big bruising Buckeye fullback, Harold Henson. Griffin rushed for 107 yards in slightly more than two quarters of play to extend his string of consecutive regular season games of 100 or more yards to 27.

Michigan unleashed a devastatingly balanced attack in handing Northwestern its worst setback since 1899 when Chicago blasted the Wildcats 77-0.

The Wolverines equalled the single game Big Ten rushing mark in the contest with 573 yards. Michigan used three players at the tailback position and all rushed for more than 100 yards. Starter Gordie Bell picked up 100 yards in 14 carries, Rob Lytle followed with 105 yards in eight carries and freshman Harlan Huckleby finished up at the position with 157 yards in 17 carries.

Bell, Lytle and Huckleby each scored two touchdowns.

Northwestern entered the game with the top ranked offensive unit in the Big Ten but could only muster six first downs and 115 yards.

American athletes begin to dominate competition

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Janet Merrill of Waterford, Conn., finished with a blazing final lap Sunday to win the women's 1,500 meters and, with the U. S. winning three of eight rowing finals and the team dressage, the squad the Mexicans "love to hate" is well in control of the Pan American Games.

Miss Merrill, 19, and Canada's Thelma Wright left the field behind with about 1½ laps to go with the Canadian leading at the bell. But Miss Merrill unleashed her finishing kick and drew away with every stride to be about 25-meters ahead at the finish line, which she reached in 4:18.2. Abbie Hoffman of Canada was third.

In the day's other track final, Peru's Edith Noeding won the women's 100-meter hurdles in 13.56, beating Debra LaPlante of Belville, Mich., who was caught in 13.68. Marlene Elejalde of Cuba was third.

The rowing competition started badly for the U. S. when the coxed fours, which led at the half, finished behind Canada and Cuba. After going 0-4, the U. S. finished 3-1 to emerge as the most successful team of the regatta staged over the 2,000 meter Olympic course.

Victorious crews were the blue ribbon eight, the coxless fours and the coxed pair of Kenneth Dreyfuss of Philadelphia and John Mathews of Southington, Conn. The U. S. also picked up three silver and one bronze medal.

Two Brazilian boats were successful, as were one each from Argentina, Canada and Cuba.

The U. S. eight led from start to finish, but stroke Chris Stevenson of Philadelphia had to raise the striking rate to 37 per minute at the finish to hold off the Cuban boat, which almost made up a two-length deficit. The winning time was 6:24.4.

Team officials had hoped for a sweep of all eight medals after a month of intensive altitude training here, but "tourist tummy" weakened some oarsmen, while the altitude and severe headwinds also took a heavy toll.

"You train to win. When you don't win, you're disappointed," said head coach Allen Rosenberg.

The coxed fours was lost when Hovie Kemp of Denver, Colo., virtually quit rowing after the halfway mark. Weakened by stomach trouble last week, he had no strength left and the four became a three-man boat. Kemp was removed from the shell on a stretcher, but he suffered no serious harm and returned with the team to the village. Canada's winning time was 6:53.1.

Heesen has to settle for third place finish

LEWISBURG — Pete Heesen placed third and so did the East Stroudsburg State College team in the annual Bucknell Invitational Cross Country Championships Saturday.

Heesen had a time, 25:27, eight seconds better than last year's winning time set by Ron Spear of Rutgers, a four-minute miler. He fell once, however, and took jostling from the Bucknell entries in suffering his first defeat of the season.

Larry Hager of Bucknell was first in a school record time of 25:18.2 over the 5.1-mile course. Teammate Bob Braile was second.

IRVING, Tex. (UPI) — Veteran Green Bay quarterback John Hadl passed 26 yards to tight end Rich McGeorge with 1:52 remaining in the game Sunday to rally the winless Packers to a 19-17 upset of the Dallas Cowboys.

The scoring drive was set up by Golden Richards' fumble of a Green Bay punt on the Dallas 31.

The scoring pass to McGeorge was the only touchdown pass Hadl threw all afternoon, although he directed Green Bay to brief leads in the first and third periods.

Quarterback Roger Staubach, with help from veteran running back Preston Pearson had revived a sluggish Dallas offense with a pair of second-half scoring drives, putting the Cowboys ahead 17-12 late in the fourth quarter.

Despite the loss, the Cowboys remained one game ahead in the NFC Eastern Division because of 13-10 loss by the Washington Redskins in Houston.

Oilers, 13-10
HOUSTON (UPI) — Dan Pastori's pinpoint passes moved Houston to two second-half touchdowns and an Oiler defense aroused by the ejection of linebacker Robert Brazile stymied the Washington Redskins to preserve a 13-10 National Football League win Sunday.

Oiler safety Zeke Moore intercepted a Billy Kilmer pass to thwart one late Redskin drive, and the Houston defense then stopped Washington on a fourth down at the Houston 36.

Mark Mosley's 47-yard field goal attempt with 3:13 remaining was wide right, assuring Houston of its fourth win in five games.

The Redskins, who scored on Kilmer's 13-yard touchdown pass to Frank Grant in the second quarter, could muster only Mosley's 32-yard field goal in the second half.

Despite the loss, Washington remained one game off the lead in the National Football League Eastern Division because of a 19-17 loss by the Dallas Cowboys to the Green Bay Packers.

Fullback Don Hardman scored both Houston touchdowns on one yard runs.

Cardinals, 31-20
ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Jim Otis scored on touchdown runs of one and five yards and finished with 116 yards rushing in his finest pro performance Sunday to lead the St. Louis Cardinals to a 31-20 victory over the Philadelphia Eagles Sunday.

The barrel-chested fullback outrushed his more heralded teammate, Terry Metcalf, who finished with 81 yards in 14 carries and caught five passes for 37 yards.

Otis got his second touchdown of the game on a five-yard charge up the middle with just over a minute left in the third quarter to give St. Louis a 24-10 lead the Eagles could not overcome.

The score was set up when Philadelphia running back Art Malone fumbled ramming into the line and Cardinal cornerback Roger Wehrli recovered at the Eagle 25.

Metcalf ran for 18 yards on the first play and Otis carried for two yards before bulling in for the score.

Philadelphia scored on a 40-yard Horst Muhlmann field goal early in the fourth quarter and an 11-yard pass from Roman Gabriel to Harold Carmichael to close to within 24-20. But the Cardinal offense ran down the clock and St. Louis padded it winning margin on a five-yard TD run by Eddie Moss as time ran out.

Dolphins humiliate Jets, 43-0

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bob Griese threw three touchdown passes and ran for another score and the Miami defense, led by cornerback Curtis Johnson, forced eight turnovers Sunday as the Dolphins handed the New York Jets their worst loss in 12 years, 43-0.

Griese, who was 10-for-14 for 155 yards, threw 53 yards to Nat Moore, two to Norm Bulaich and 32 to Jim Mandich for touchdowns and had a four-yard touchdown run. The Jets' loss was their worst since a 48-0 defeat by Kansas City in 1963.

Johnson had three of the six Miami interceptions off Joe Namath, caused another with a jarring hit and recovered a fumble as the Dolphins defensive back set up three touchdowns.

Mercury Morris, who entered the game as the AFC's No. 3 rusher, had 114 yards including a 10-yard touchdown run and a 49-yard run that set up Don Nottingham's one-yard TD.

Namath finished with only eight completions in 24 attempts for 96 yards and was intercepted six times for the third time in his career. The victory was Miami's fourth straight after an opening game loss to Oakland, while the Jets fell to 2-3.

The Dolphins intercepted three passes and recovered a Jet fumble to surge to a 26-0 halftime lead.

Griese took Miami 58 yards in 10 plays in the first quarter, capping the drive with a four-yard quarterback draw for the touchdown.

Steelers, 34-3

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Franco Harris, Rocky Bleier and Terry Bradshaw scored touchdowns and the Pittsburgh Steeler defense shut off the Chicago Bears in the second half Sunday for a 34-3 victory.

Reggie Harrison also scored for the Steelers, in the second period, and Roy Gerela kicked two field goals.

The Bears, who had averaged only 82 yards a game rushing this season, fought the Steelers on even terms in the first period, but Pittsburgh began showing its Super Bowl form in the second period.

The Bears scored first on the opening play of the second period when Bob Thomas' 32-yard field goal capped a 12-play drive which started at the Bears' 20.

On the next series the Steelers drove to the Chicago 27 but had to settle for Gerela's 37-yard field goal. Bobby Walden highlighted the drive when he faked a punt and tossed a 20-yard pass to Donnie Shell for a first down at the Chicago 35.

Pittsburgh scored again in the second period when Nemiah Wilson was called on a 44-yard pass interference penalty in the end zone. The Steelers got the ball on the one and two plays later Harrison went over left guard for the touchdown.

Patriots, 27-10

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — Second-year pro Andy Johnson, who entered the game with minus two yards rushing for his career, Sunday ran for touchdowns of three and 66 yards to give New England a 21-10 victory over Baltimore.

The victory was New England's first in five National Football League games this season.

Johnson, a quarterback at Georgia drafted in the fifth round last year, carried 18 times for 124 yards in the rain-splattered contest. Sam Cunningham scored the Patriots' first touchdown from one yard out, while Don McCauley ran two yards for the Colts' only TD. Toni Linhart added a 34-yard field goal for Baltimore.

ESSC women wind up second

NEWARK, Del. — East Stroudsburg State College's volleyball team placed second in the eight-team University of Delaware Volleyball Tournament which ended Saturday.

The University of Maryland defeated ESSC, 10-15, 15-4, 15-2, in the championship match. Maryland also had won an earlier preliminary match between the two teams, 8-15, 15-7, 15-1.

The Warriors won three matches, defeated 1974 regional champion Brooklyn College, 15-9, 15-3, and Queens College, 15-9, 15-5, in the preliminary round and then downing the host University of Delaware, 3-15, 15-1, 18-16, in the semifinals.

Delaware placed third in the tournament with Salisbury State fourth, Penn State fifth, William and Mary sixth, Queens seventh and Brooklyn eighth.

The big win for Coach Diane Spitzer's ESSC players was in the first game of the championship match against the undefeated Maryland team.

Dawn Frey led the way with five aces, six perfect receptions and three kills. Tina Krah had five perfect receptions and Chris Dean had two kills. The match ended on Frey's serve.

Maryland took charge in the final two games, however, with its defense taking the play away from a powerful, but erratic ESSC attack and its spikers fighting relentlessly at the net.

The 3-1 record against four tournament opponents left the Warriors with a 12-1 season's record. They will return home for a match against Cortland State Tuesday at 3 p.m.

Ann Landers

Night shift

Dear Ann Landers: Will you do me a special favor and print two letters from me in your column? The first I wrote to my husband 15 years ago and kept a copy of. The second I mailed to him last night. Thank you for your special consideration. —

R.L.

Date: August 1, 1960

Dear Jack: For what seems like the millionth time I walked into the house tonight and you are not here. You aren't out fooling around. You are at work on the night shift.

I never wanted you to take that shift and we argued about it. You thought it was well worth the extra money. I told you I didn't care about the money, that I'd rather have a normal family life. But I lost the battle.

Our children are sick of hearing me say, "Shhh — your father is asleep." They can't bring their friends home after school or practice the piano. I can't have a table of bridge or the garden club meetings here. You need your rest.

The years slip away so rapidly. We seem to be growing further apart. Then there's this matter of your health. I look at you and see a tired, middle-aged man who needs regular hours, regular meals and a regular routine.

I realize you are doing what you think is best for me and the children, but you're wrong. Will you please reconsider? I love you. —

Your Wife

Here's the second letter which I mailed last night:

Dear Jack: When the judge said, "Divorce granted," you vaguely resembled a man I used to know — but you looked about 40 years older.

There is no point in going into the whys and wherefores, but I wonder now, if you could have gazed into a crystal ball and seen what the future held, would you have done things differently?

Our children view you as a stranger. You missed out on all the fun when they were growing up. The few good friends we had dropped us along the way. We could never seem to get together.

So now our marriage is over and we must both make new lives for ourselves. If it had been another woman I would have felt better. But it was something far more insidious — that night shift. Goodbye and good luck, dear. —

Your Ex-Wife

Dear Friend: Here are both your letters. I print them for the value they might have to others who may be struggling with the same problem. Thanks for sharing your sad story. Perhaps someone, somewhere, will learn from it.

Dear Ann Landers: Our son is 21, a college junior, and a serious student. The young woman he has been dating since his freshman year is very attractive. She is well-mannered, does well in school and I like her.

The problem: My husband knows they have been having sex for the last year (at least) and he really despises the girl because of it. If she were our daughter, it might be understandable. But why my husband has these hostile feelings toward her is beyond me.

I'm sure they are in love and plan to marry. I hate to think of the trouble ahead for this girl because of my husband's irrational attitude. How can I help? —

Trouble a'Brewin'

Dear Brew: Don't argue with your husband about the situation or try to defend the girl. Just keep the lid on.

Irrational people are unreachable. Let's hope Dad's anger subsides. If not, he'll find himself the victim of his own isolation. ***

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Alligator hunters made their final legal sweep through Louisiana's swamps and bayous Sunday in an unprofitable pursuit of exquisite hides European buyers once paid $21 a foot to own. 1,700 U.S. marshals end duties on Guam

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The biggest strain ever on their agency ended for the 1,700 U.S. marshals last week when the peace-keeping force was pulled out of Guam after Vietnamese refugees returned to their homeland. For 3-1/2 months, 50 U.S.

d'Estaing's popularity tested

CHATELLERAULT, France (UPI) — The French government and the opposition Socialists battled Sunday for a parliamentary seat in a election contest seen as a test of President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing's popularity after 16 months in office. Voting took place under the protection of riot police brought in to block a threatened "invasion" of rebellious French prostitutes. A motorcade of 250 prostitutes rode through town Saturday and said they would be back on election day and offer their services in the streets for free if necessary. The prostitutes, campaigning for an end to police harassment, said the action would prompt many women to keep their husbands at home and would thus hurt the government candidate, who needs every vote he can get. The presence of heavy police forces, however, apparently kept the prostitutes away. Sunday's vote was a run-off between Pierre Abelin, Minister of Cooperation with developing nations, who was backed by all government coalition factions, and opposition Socialist Mrs. Edith Cresson, supported by the Communists and extreme left-wing groups.

Court arguments begin in Karen Quinlan case

MORRISTOWN, N.J. (UPI) — The adoptive parents of a comatose woman they say is a "vegetable" seek court permission today to unplug the respirator that has kept their daughter's heart beating for six months. Opposing the action before Superior Court Judge Robert Muir is the hospital in which the young woman is being cared for, the New Jersey Attorney General and the county prosecutor. At issue is the legal question of whether Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Quinlan have the right on religious grounds to take 21-year-old Karen Ann off the machine to let her die naturally with "grace and dignity." Karen has been in a coma in St. Clare's Hospital in Denerville, N.J., since April 14 when she suffered respiratory failure after taking a combination of tranquilizers and alcohol. Paul W. Armstrong, the family's attorney, has argued that the Roman Catholic family believes that no extraordinary life-sustaining mechanisms should be used to keep Karen alive. "They believe that life-influencing decisions are to be left to the individual and the family ... and that such life-influencing decisions are to be based on the spiritual best interests of the persons affected," Armstrong said. "The family says that it is 'cruel and unusual' to keep their daughter on the machine since the 'dignity, beauty, promise and meaning of earthly life (has) vanished.' But the New Jersey Attorney General, the attending physicians and the county prosecutor have opposed the family's request because they say it would be murder. Attorney General William F. Hyland said the state's primary interest is protecting life and that the Quinlan's religious freedom does not include the liberty to choose death. "The right to life is fundamental," said Hyland. "Even if the right to privacy encompassed a right to elect death, Karen Quinlan is incapable of making that choice." The family also argued Miss Quinlan had asked her parents not to subject her to extraordinary medical procedures that would delay her death in the event of terminal illness. But Daniel R. Coburn, the court-appointed guardian for Miss Quinlan, said that argument will probably not be admissible in court because there is no concrete evidence to support the claim. "Karen's medical condition is that of at least a severely retarded person — one with a consciousness level less than of an infant," Coburn said. "Karen ... can not be subjected to the religious beliefs on the part of her parents which would deprive her of life." The hospital and two attending physicians have opposed removing Miss Quinlan from the respirator because she occasionally breathes without the aid of the machine. "Miss Quinlan is alive and to force the hospital, its staff and the doctors to discontinue the respirator would be to order an act which is repugnant to the hospital," the hospital said. The hospital asked the court to appoint a third party to take Miss Quinlan off the life-sustaining device if the court rules in favor of the family. The family, however, said their adoptive daughter is only a vegetable and wants her to be removed from the respirator to die naturally with "grace and dignity." "If the court...compels the continuation of treatment, it can do so only on the philosophical grounds that earthly life is to be preserved at any cost," Armstrong said.

Doesn't want mechanical aid to live

Retiree wants to die

PLEASANT HILL, Calif. (UPI) — Delmar Stuermer, 59, a retired mailman, is being kept alive by a breathing apparatus because he has emphysema but he wants to die and he wants someone to kill him. "Anyone who has to depend on mechanical devices to live shouldn't have to if they haven't got a future," Stuermer said in an interview at a rest home. He said he asked his physician for a pill that would kill him but got a negative answer. "He's asked me more than once if there is something I can do to end his misery, and I've told him that euthanasia is against medical ethics and the law," Dr. Michael Cohen said. "I've never encountered anybody as outspoken as him before. I've never had anybody ask me to end their misery like that before." Stuermer was once a robust active man. The native Nebraskan fished the ocean for marlin and the Sacramento, Calif., Delta for striped bass. He sipped his share of bourbon. And he smoked three packs of cigarettes a day. He was first diagnosed with the lung disease 17 years ago but he was able to live with it. However, last October his health began to fail "and suddenly the emphysema I lived with for so long decided to take over and there wasn't a damn thing I could do," Stuermer said. He has been in and out of hospitals.

Environmentalists seek to end 'bird war'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Environmentalists hope to force the government to file impact statements before a U.S. judge lets it wage another chemical war on millions of blackbirds roosting in Kentucky and Tennessee. Philip Sunderland, attorney for the New York-based Society for Animal Rights, said his motion to require the environmental reports is preliminary to a court battle to ban blackbird slaughter with a new chemical spray. Last February the society won a temporary stay as the government prepared to spray the birds, but the U.S. Court of Appeals reversed the decision and Chief Justice Warren E. Burger refused to intervene. That allowed time for two sprayings — at Ft. Campbell and near Paducah, Ky. — before the birds flew north. The chemical, Tergitol, allows rain to wash away the birds' protective oil. In the 50-degree weather, hundreds of thousands of birds died of exposure. Farmers in Kentucky complain the temporary injunction caused crop losses and they plan to sue the society for damages. The society says the sprayings were done without knowing what it does to the environment, that the chemical may build up in the chain of life, and that it is not "humane" to kill the birds. The birds — popularly called blackbirds although there are several species — are blamed for crop loss, fouling grain with droppings, endangering low-

Elton John to be honored

Singing idols draw crowds

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — When stars are dedicated on Hollywood's "Walk of Fame," who do you think draws the biggest crowds — movie and television idols, directors, or producers? "It's the young singing idols," says Chief Samuelson, who has been in charge of the glittering walk the past three years. "They draw a heck of a lot more media than motion picture and television stars. And producers — they don't draw anything." "The public is interested in seeing faces," he says. "And with the exception, maybe, of Rudy Vallee, who has always been a favorite, the rock singers seem to be in. Even the biggies like Carol Burnett and Robert Goulet didn't attract that many people." The "Walk of Fame" has dedicated 1,661 stars since it was opened in 1961. The last star went to singer Rick Nelson last month. "It was a madhouse," said Samuelson. "I've never seen so much confusion." This Thursday, rock superstar Elton John will be honored with one on Hollywood Boulevard in front of the famed Chinese Theater. "We're blocking off the street this time and issuing press badges," says Samuelson. The famed boulevard will be roped off for four intersections, from La Brea to Vine Street, and in order to attend the dedication, each member of the media must go in person to the Chamber of Commerce to pick up their credentials.

THIS MAY BE THE BIGGEST OPPORTUNITY OF YOUR LIFE TIME.

The NEED exists. The PRODUCE is superior. The TIMING is right. Government report estimates cancer-causing chemicals to be in 100% of U.S. drinking water supplies — not removed by treatment plants.

SEAGUL IV removes these, plus harmful bacteria, rust, scale, dirt, and invisible suspended matter including asbestos, as small as 0.4 microns, better than anything you can buy — without asbestos. Yet leaves in essential minerals.

Compact stainless steel product is technically superior to anything new on the market. U.S. and foreign patents pending. This kind of perfect combination doesn't come by every day.

This may be the biggest opportunity of your lifetime. Help others and build an extra income at the same time. The timing is NOW. This is your chance. Find out more — right now. Call or write —

Teen Forum

Dream girl

By Jean Adams

DREAMS: (Q.) Jan is very popular. She is pretty and especially well built, and guys want to go with her. She is going with someone else now. I dream about her every night. I think I am deeply in love with her but no one knows it but me.

I guess I will have to wait until she breaks up with this guy, but I don't know if I can wait. How do I tell her I care? She is 13 and I am too.

Impatient in N.C.

(A.) Dreaming about Jan is not proof that you love her. You might dream about one of your teachers, or some strange girl you saw in the hall. It is normal for teen-age boys to have vivid dreams about various girls and women.

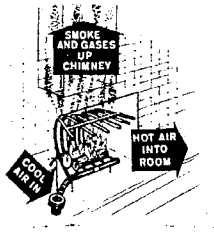

But if you are extra fond of Jan and want to become friendlier with her, you don't have to wait till she breaks up with someone else. You can talk with her at school, and on the telephone. Doing these things will tell her you are interested in her.

RESTLESS: (Q.) When Michael started going with me he wanted sex. I told him, no, that I was a virgin and plan to be one until I marry. He accepted this and we started going steady.

Soon he asked me if I would marry him in a couple of years and I told him yes. We were so happy. Then he started to shy away. He doesn't stay long and he kisses me only to say good-night. I have heard that he

How to Cook and Cope

Look for the exciting new A&P Cookbook and Shopping Guide in your local A&P. It's more than just another cookbook because we wanted to give you more than just recipes. We've included loads of tips for making good, money saving choices in the supermarket. As well as charts and hints for economical meal preparation. There are over 1,000 recipes centered around good, practical cooking...developed and tested with today's tight economy in mind. Do you know how to make three meals from a chuck roast? You'll find all the answers in this unique cookbook. Although the main focus has been on meals any busy cook can prepare, you'll find inspiration for the finest of gourmet fare. It's everything it name says it is.
